COURTROOM SCENE OF FISTIC BATTLE

Former Judge W. W. Henderson Attacks Attorney John D. Johnson, Knocking Him Down.

LIE PASSED IN TRIAL OF CASE

After First Onslaught Johnson Used Table Leg in Defense—Blood From Nose and Hands.

William H. Henderson, a former judge of the St. Louis probate court, and John D. Johnson, a prominent St. Louis attorney, fought in the probate courtroom of the Courthouse at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

The onlookers rushed in and separated the combatants. Mr. Johnson was bleeding at the nose. He sat down, as did Judge Henderson, and the battle seemed over until Mr. Johnson passed the judge and said something to him in low tones.

Judge Henderson arose and asked the protection of the court. Subsequently he said that if he could not have the court's protection he would protect himself.

Mr. Johnson, seizinz a leg, wrenched from the table in the first encounter, swung it over his shoulder and poised it there until the judge should come close enough. People in the room rushed in a second time and prevented the meeting.

Naturally, the excitement in the courtroom was by this time intense. Judge Crews and others offered their services as pacificators, and Judge Henderson and Mr. Johnson made some sort of apologies and shook hands.

Were Opposing Council in Suit.

The principals in this spirited combat appeared before Judge Crews in the settlement of the estate of Caroline Hoffman. Mr. Johnson appeared as counsel for the executor, and Judge Henderson represented one of the heirs.

The trouble began when the case was taken up. Mr. Johnson disputed the court's jurisdiction. Judge Henderson said he had not been notified that any such question was to be raised, and remarked that he considered Mr. Johnson's action unusual in the extreme. Subsequently he said that Mr. Johnson had not acted fair with his (the judge's) client in the making of a contract in the case.

The colloquy between the attorneys then took a startling turn. Mr. Johnson arose, and, turning upon Judge Henderson, said with rising wrath:

"If Judge Henderson says I have done anything unfair he is a liar."

Judge Henderson rushed upon Mr. Johnson and struck him. Then he grappled Mr. Johnson and forced him to a table.

It was at this point that the onlookers rushed in and separated the men.

Made Rush in Spasm of Wrath.

The second encounter was less harmful, if more spectacular. Just what Mr. Johnson said to Judge Henderson when he passed him the people in the courtroom could not hear. But they did see the judge, after making the statement that, being without the protection of the court, he would protect himself, rush at Mr. Johnson in a perfect spasm of wrath; and they did see Mr. Johnson, now active in his own defense, reach down and come up with the detached table leg; they saw it flash over his shoulder, and, like the sword of Damocles, sway there until the judge should come within range.

Then recovering from their astonishment with these dramatic proceedings for a second time, they rushed in and laid hold on the men.

When the apologies were made, Judge Henderson asked Mr. Johnson if he would not have done the same thing under the conditions, meaning his own attack when Mr. Johnson said he was a liar if he alleged unfairness.

Mr. Johnson is said by persons in the courtroom to have answered that he certainly would have done the same thing.

The attorneys in the case being considerably fatigued, Judge Crews continued the case.

The battle was witnessed by a great many people. It was so terrific that people were terrified. Some of the men even rushed to the door.

The Post-Dispatch found Judge Henderson at Mr. Johnson's office in the Bank of Commerce building an hour and a half after the encounter in the courtroom.

The gentlemen were alone. Mr. Johnson said:

"Judge Henderson is here, and we have been completely conciliated. Our encounter grew out of a misunderstanding. We regret it very much. I thought the judge was imputing to me an unprofessional act. I resented it, became indignant, and applied to him an epithet wwich he answered with a blow.

"The understanding came in the trial of a case in which there has been considerable feeling. We were both very angry, and in our anger we forgot ourselves and said and did what we ought not to have done. I should not have said what I did, and Judge Henderson had a perfect right to act as he did. His explanation after the encounter convinced me that he did not intend the imputation which I resented."

Mr. Johnson was smoking. He bore no perceptible marks of the encounter.

Judge Henderson said:

"Mr. Johnson and I had an unfortunate understanding, and I have come to him to make all possible amends. There is no feeling between us."

WARRANT AGAINST HANSMANN

Disabled Former Justice Is Still Pursued in Courts by His Enemies.

Eugene Hausman, the evicted and deposed dictator of Maplewood, is to be arrested on a charge of assault with intent to kill as soon as he is able to leave his bed. Constable Fred Lenz, who disarmed the former justice of the peace and postmaster and then added to his physical infirmities by striking him on the head with his own revolver, caused the warrant to be issued before Justice Helmering, who caused Hansmann to be deposed from the justice bench in the contest case.

At present Hansmann is awaiting the return of health, driven away by the blows of the constable. He is down and out for the present. After his long and valiant fight, troubles came thick this week. Two courts rendered decisions against him, throwing him out of office and business place, a constable knocked him down and caused a warrant to be issued again[illegible] him and a deputy sheriff served an at[illegible] on him to appear in the circui[illegible] [illegible] as a witness.

SADDLE WEDDING UNDER OAK TREE

St. Louis Girl Married on Horseback While Friends Were in Pursuit.

A TWO-CHAPTER ELOPEMENT

Little Brother at Union Station and Good Parson in Crawford County Played Surprised Parts in the Drama.

Under the shade of an old oak tree, upon horses whose lathered sides showed evidence of rapid riding to escape pursuit, Miss Sadie Anderson of 4427 Cote Brilliante avenue and Sample Orr of Leasburg, Mo., joined hands and were married.

No irate father was the pursuer of the participants in this horseback wedding, but close on the heels of the pair came a score of the husband's friends, who arrived too late to witness the ceremony with its unique seeting.

Two elopements for one wedding were necessary to escape the curious gaze of the friends of both.

The first occurred on Sunday, when Orr met Miss Anderson at Union Station and relieved her young brother, Willy, of the task of escorting her home.

Learning that Miss Anderson would be at Union Station Sunday morning, he appeared there just as the train for Leasburg was pulling out. Before the eyes of his astonished financee he waved two tickets and a Crawford County marriage license.

"Come, Sadie," said he, "jump aboard and we'll go up home and get married. I can't stand the thought of a crowd watching our wedding, so come on and we'll fool them all."

She had not a moment in which to waver or argue the question, so she bent down and kissed her little brother good-by.

Excursion Train Cupid's Special.

"Tell mamma I have gone on the excursion, Willy," said the girl with many blushes, as she was helped aboard the moving train.

"Tell her Sadie has gone to get married," shouted Orr from the rear platform as the train pulled out.

When the train reached Leasburg there was a great scramble on the part of well-meaning friends to give the pair an ovation on the station platform, as the word went around that a wedding was in prospect.

There was a gathering of the clans and a saddling and bridling of horses to attend the wedding.

Orr had provided for this situation also, and hurried his bride through the little station to the rear, where he had two horses saddled and in readiness. A telegram to one of his friends had arranged this after the friends on the train had expressed their intention to witness the wedding.

In a cloud of dust they disappeared down the road, and the cry went up among those on the platform:

"They've gone to get Parson Kitchens to marry them."

Every available nag was mounted, and the strange pursuit began. Some were in wagons, whose sides were bare of paint, while the younger element, lacking saddles, bestrode the bare backs of the horses, which they had taken from a nearby pasture. All were intent on reaching the house of the dominie before the ceremony was over, and down the road they went at breakneck pace.

A stern chase, be it ever so merry, is proverbially a long one, and the cloud of dust that marked the fleeing bridal pair drew gradually away from the cloud stirred up by the pursuing procession.

Seldom has a minister been called upon to join two fond hearts at such short notice as was Rev. William Kitchens.

Dominie Given Hurry-Up Call.

His dinner was smoking on the table and grace had been said, but there could be no disregarding the imperious shout of young Orr.

"Hey there, Mr. Kitchens, come out and marry us right away."

So the astounded dominie seized his "Discipline" and hurried to the shade of the oak tree under which the couple had halted their horses.

The license was produced and the wedding service hurried through, the couple re-

DOZEN HURT IN CRASH OF CARS

Thirty-Five Passengers Were Thrown From Their Seats by the Collision.

In a collision at Fourteenth and Carr streets between eastbound and northbound Spring avenue cars, at 7:30 Saturday morning, a dozen persons were injured, two of them seriously.

The known injured are:

J. H. Moberly, motorman, 1316 North Garrison avenue; internal injuries.

Miss Katie Redfield, 16, seriously shaken and briused.

Mrs. Annie Hartnett, 60, 2527 Gamble street; scalp wound.

George A. Meinburgh, 3705 Cote Brillante avenue; left leg and arm bruised.

H. H. Miller, 1623 Knapp street; bruises.

A half dozen others, who sustained minor hurts, left without giving their names.

Moberly was taken to his home and is in a serious condition. Miss Redfield and Mrs. Harnett were carried into a drug store at Fourteenth and Carr streets, where they were attended by Dr. F. O. Sturhahn of 915 North Fourteenth street and Deputy Coroner Dr. Boogher. They were taken to their homes in carriages.

Motorman Moberly and Conductor W. J. Davis were in charge of northbound car 98, which contained no passengers.

Eastbound car No. 582, containing 35 passengers, was in charge of Motorman H. Barto or 2430 Spring avenue and Conductor G. M. Grimshaw of 3530½ Cozens avenue.

The eastbound car had the right of way at Fourteenth and Carr streets, where the tracks cross at right angles.

As it reached the middle of the streets, the northbound car crashed into it. They were not running at a high rate of speed or the result would have been more disastrous.

The eastbound car was carried several feet from the track, but was not overturned.

The tracks were blockaded an hour and a half. The forward portions of both cars were damaged.

FROM HOSPITAL TO WORKHOUSE

New Hospital Rule Will Give "Chronic Alcoholites" Opportunity to Get Very Sober.

Three appearances at the City Hospital for treatment as a "plain drunk" make the patient as a "chronic alcoholite," according to a ruling just placed in force by the hospital authorities, who will insist in future that such patients be prosecuted in the various police courts and given workhouse sentences.

It had been the custom to treat alcoholic patients with leniency at the hospital, especially if they have not resisted arrest, or no other charges were pending against them. After being treated they were usually discharged.

FATHER'S SEARCH IS SUCCESSFUL

Prof. Wills Found Daughters in St. Louis After Three Years' Search.

A remarkable search for children was related Saturday in Judge Fisher's division of the Circuit Court by Prof. Henry M. Wills of the law department of the National University, Washington, in a habeas corpus proceeding for the recovery of his daughters, Dan, aged 7, and Neva, aged 5. Mrs. Zella E. Rinhart opposes his effort.

Aug. 15, 1894, Prof. Wills married Miss Zella E. Stellings at Milan, Tenn., and after moving from place to place in Tennessee and Indiana, they settled in Kirkland, Ind.

Prof. Wills testified Saturday morning that he notified his wife he intended suit for divorce, and April 3, 1898, she left him for her former home in Gibson County, Tenn., on a visit. While there, she filed a suit for divorce, alleging cruelty and non-support. Sept. 30, 1898, the divorce was granted. Wills testified that he was never notified of the proceedings.

After learning of the decree he went to Tennessee and began proceedings for the annulment of the divorce and for the possession of his daughters. Mrs. Wills not only failed to appear to answer the habeas corpus proceedings, but left the state. She was indicted for contempt of court, and the indictment and suit for annulment are still pending.

Mrs. Wills married Robert R. Rinehart in Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 27, 1900, but he soon obtained a divorce.

After the second divorce was granted, Mrs. Rinehart placed the children in the Methodist Episcopal Orphans' Home in St. Louis.

After searching for the children all over the country and employing detectives, Prof. Wills located them at the home about three months ago. He brought the habeas corpus proceedings. Mrs. Rinehart appeared in court Saturday to oppose the proceedings.

THE SKY WILL BE PATCHWORK

The Partly Cloudy State of Weather Has Returned and Will Remain Sunday.

Bits of blue and bits of black, some of shine and some of shadow. That's what we're to have Saturday night and Sunday. Harken if you will to this, coming as it does from the weather headquarters:

"Partly cloudy Saturday night and Sunday. Slight change in temperature. Variable winds, mostly northerly."

There was a disturbance in the weather line over Iowa Friday. That disturbance has packed its trunk and taken an airship to the upper Ohio valley, where it has been causing happenings in the rain class.

Rain also fell in the lake region, Tennessee and the East. The rainfall at Grand Haven, Mich., was 1.12 inches.

The temperature took a stroll toward the lower depths in the lake region and the Upper Mississippi valley during the last 24 hours. The wanderer didn't go very far, however. At 7 o'clock it was down to only 66 degrees in St. Louis.

It walked upward west of the Rocky Mountains and in the Southeast.

The river is now down to 28.8 feet. Its fall in the last 24 hours was 1.3 feet.

MERCHANTS DEMAND BETTER TERMINAL CONDITIONS

HOW BRIDGE ARBITRARY COULD BE ABOLISHED

President McChesney contends that the Terminal company cannot abolish the bridge arbitrary of its own motion; that the joint action of all the lines concerned would be required; other supporters of the TERMINAL GRAB contend that to abolish the bridge arbitrary—that is to make the rates from eastern points to St. Louis the same as to East St. Louis—would upset all the railroad tariffs, and that it could not be done.

But this is how the bridge arbitrary was abolished at Omaha, where the same situation exicts as now obtains here, Council Bluffs being the East St. Louis.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Effective June 15, the rates from Omaha, Neb., will be the same to points in Iowa as are now in effect from Council Bluffs to points in that state.

All rates now shown on our map from Omaha to points in Iowa should be 5 cents (FIVE CENTS) lower than at present. Yours truly,

St. Louis, Mo., June 12, 1903. ALLEN RATE MAP CO.

This notice was issued at St. Louis, June 12, and since that date the erstwhile Bridge Arbitrary at Omaha has been out of business.

They Tell House That Sentiment of Business Community Is Not for Donation of Franchises.

HOW ARBITRARY HAS DRIVEN FIRMS AWAY

Proposed Loop Declared Not Essential to World's Fair, as Three Steam Lines Pass Grounds.

Following are thechief points brought out in the argument against the Terminal loop grab bill Friday afternoon by wholesale men, manufacturers and representatives of business organizations:

The Federal Lead Co., employing 2000 men, decided one year ago not to locate its mammoth plant in St. Louis, on account of the bridge arbitrary. It built the plant at Alton and a town of 2000 families has grown up around it.

The Hoyt Metal Co. has secured options on ground in East St. Louis, and will move its plant from St. Louis on account of the bridge arbitrary, which costs it $1420 a month.

The Merchants' bridge was built to relieve St. Louis from the monopoly of the Eads bridge. Congress forbade its consolidation with any other bridge. The consolidation has taken place. Congress directed that the secretary of war should take oesession of the bridge if a consolidation was attempted.

St. Louis offers high ground for the terminals now in East St. Louis, where they would be out of reach of coods.

The freifiht on a shipment to the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. from Milwaukee, Wis., was $52.37, $10.96, or one-fourth, being the charge from East St. Louis to St. Louis.

The bridge arbitrary places a heavy tax on coal, which the people pay. Two years ago the poor paid 5 0cents a bucket for coal while the Terminal Association held hundreds of cars across the the river.

The tunnel would be objectionable if electricity were used in it. The loss of life on underground roads is small compared with that on surface lines.

Teh Terminal bills wi give away all the levee except the incline and cripple river traffic in the face of the fact that agitation for a deep waterway to the gulf is growing.

Chicago shippers have an advantage over St. Louis shippers in rates to the Southwest of about 1 0cents per hundred pounds. Of tnis amount the Terminal gets 3 cents, and the 14 railroads belonging to it get the rest.

The Terminal is no tessential for World's Fair transportation. The street railroad companies, if the Wabash, Frisco, Missouri Pacific and Rock Island, which run to the Fair grounds, will aid, can handle the business.

The Terminal and the railroads in it can carry passengers and freight across the Eads and Merchants' bridges just as cheap as across any other bridge. The railroads do not make special charges for every bridge they cross elsewhere, as they do in St. Louis. There are other bridges that cost as much as the Merchants' or Eads and are as expensive to maintain.

St. Louis is the only city which pays toll across the Merchants' and Eads bridge. East St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, New oYrk and all other cities have their freight carried across without extra cost to them. The railroads absorb the tolls.

The bridge arbitrary is an outworn system, and other cities have abolished it, notably Omaha, Louisville and Cincinnati. St. Louis is the only city which still has it.

It takes from 24 to 48 hours to get freght from East St. Louis to St. Louis. A through bill of lading would save all this time.

The business organizations of St. Louis are not in favor of granting the Terminal franchises. The members of the Merchants' Exchange who have spoken for the Terminal voiced their own sentiments and not those of the exchange. Other organizations, including the Tower Grove Citizens' Association, the Carondelet Business Men's Association, the North Broadway Association, the Builders' Exchange [illegible] the Central Trades and Labor Un[illegible] representatives to protest against [illegible]age of the bills.

WILL POSTAL SCANDAL HAVE CHAPTER HERE?

Inspectors Will Investigate Financial Conduct of St. Louis Office, Following Washington Disclosures.

Dispatches from Washington state that the investigation into the national postal scandal will be extended to the St. Louis Postoffice, and that inspectors will arrive here in a few days to institute the inquiry.

It appears that the Washington authorities believe the St. Louis office shared in the needless expenditure of government funds, which, according to the report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow, occurred under the administration of Charles Emory Smith.

The active head of the Smith administration, as the testimony shows, was Perry S. Heath, first assistant postmaster-general.

Evidence now on record at Washington discloses that Heath used the power and resources of the postal service to promote private and personal snaps.

It has been established that he appointed hundreds of employes regardless of civil service rules, and that his department was used as a sort of clearing house to pay the political debts incurred by the national Republican committee during the campaign of 1896.

Heath is now secretary of the national Republican committee, but it is thought that his resignation will soon be forthcoming.

Contracts Cause Chief Scandal.

Apart from Heath's activity as the executive of one of the important branches of the government, others have fattened on postal trusts.

Perhaps the most flagrant case of corruption was that unearthed in the method of disposing of government contracts.

August W. Machen, superintendent of the free rural delivery system, was dismissed from the service and subsequently indicted as a result of irregularities growing out of favoritism shown to government contractors, chief of whom was were Dillar B. Groff and his brother, Samuel B. Groff.

George W. Beavers, chief of the salaries and allowances division, resigned under fire.

James T. Metcalf, superintendent of the United States money order division, was retired on account of what is termed "indiscretion" in attempting to let a contract to a firm at a less bid than was made by another firm.

So far the heads of five subdepartments have suffered official decapitation.

It is recalled, too, that the officers who supervised the accounts of the St. Louis postoffice when charges of irregularities were made by certain employes are among those who have just been removed at Washington.

Fraud Protection Calls for Inquiry.

Another feature of the inquiry will probably deal with the get-rich-quick schemes conducted by John J. Ryan, Arnold and others.

When these concerns failed, a dispute arose between the St. Louis and Washington authorities as to the conduct of the investigation made some months previous.

It became clear that the blame must be fixed somewhere, and the report was given out at Washington that Chief Postoffice Inspector Dice was to be removed.

Mr. Dice was astonished at the report. He had been in the service 22 years, and thought that his record was above criticism.

But it appears attaches in the office of the assistant attorney-general had been active in "knocking" the St. Louis official. Subsequent developments have indicated that the St. Louis inspector was not responsible for the continuance of these fradulent investment companies.

Daniel V. Miller, under whose direction the investigation of Ryan & Co., was conducted was removed from office, and is now under indictment on the charge of accepting a bribe of $5000 from Ryan for guaranteeing Ryan "government protection."

During a recent visit here, Ryan remarked that he wouldn't have used a confidential letter as Arnold had done. If he wanted to do so, he said, he had one from George A. Christencey, one of Gen. Tyner's assistants, who has retired, pending the outcome of the investigation.

Baumhoff Says "All's Well."

Postmaster Baumhoff said to the Post-Dispatch Saturday morning that there was nothing unusual, so far as he could see, in postoffice inspectors coming to St. Louis and that he desires the fullest investigation. He has given out no contracts for supplies, he says, without an order from Washingon, where the requisition for what he needs is first sent. He says he has not noticed that exorbitant prices were charged for supplies. Considering the improved material, he said he thought [illegible]igher prices than those formerly paid [illegible]ght be expected.

Further, Mr. Baum[illegible] did not think the c[illegible] him some time ago by [illegible] would be looked into b[illegible] would c[illegible]e here.

DEATH OF W. C. VAN BENTHUYSEN

Editorial Manager of New York World Succumbs to Hodgkins' Disease.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 20.—W. C. Van Benthuysen of the editorial staff of the World died at his home in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. He had been in declining health for more than a year, having been ill with Hodgkins' disease. For a time his ultimate recovery seemed assured and he returned to his desk in the World office. Four weeks ago he suffered a recurrence of the malady and grew steadily worse until death came.

Mr. Van Benthuysen leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters, all of whom were present when he died. The body will be taken to his old home at Mount Pleasant, Io., for interment Sunday night. Funeral services will be held at his late home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Van Benthuysen was born near Drakeville, Davis County, Io., on Dec. 1, 1855. His father, who is still living, is Judge William Van Benthuysen of Bloomfield, Io. The family is of Dutch descent.

At the age of 13 Mr. Van Benthuysen became a printer's apprentice, at Bloomfield. After thoroughly learning the printer's trade, he wen to California in 1873, where he worked as a compositor.

Returning to Bloomfield he purchased the Bloomfield Commonwealth and then disposed of it to purchase the Observer at Carbondale, Ill.

In 1878 Mr. Van Benthuysen sold his newspaper interests and went to Leavenworth, Kan., where he joined the editorial staff of the Press. Later he joined Col. D. R. Anthony on the Leavenworth Times. In time Col. Anthony saw that he could not offer to Mr. Van Benthuysen the inducements he deserved and he recommended him to Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Van Benthuysen joined the Tribune's staff as a reporter in 1883. He was promoted rapidly and within two years, took charge of the paper as managing editor. In this position he remained eight years, during which time the Tribune made the most rapid strides in its history.

Mr. Van Benthuysen was called to New York in March, 1898, to take the position of editorial manager of the World and for five years had been a valuable member of the editorial staff, where his able services were highly appreciated, and where by his never-failing kindness, sympathy and courtesy he earned the esteem and affection of all his associates.

MANILA CABLE READY SOON.

Last Link to Be Finished Within a Week.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—Within a week the last link of the Commercial Pacific cable will be laid between San Francisco and Manila, and the United States will have direct cable communication with its Philippine possessions.

The cableship Colonia reached Midway island yesterday, completing the link between Guam and Midway, and immediately on its arrival the Anglia departed for Honolulu to close the last gap in the trans-Pacific cable, a distance of 1160 miles.

Supt. Harrington of the Commercial Pacific Cable Co. stated today that he believed the Angelia would accomplish the voyage in six days, spinning out the wire rope en route.

TERMINAL GRAB NOT ESSENTIAL TO WORLD'S FAIR

four were on their feet demanding recognition.

The speeches were limited to five minutes each, and almost the entire audience stood throughout the meeting in order to get close to the speakers. Disregarding the seats in the chamber, they formed a dense ring around the committee.

The entire committee was present, W. D. Griffin, chairman, presiding. The other committeemen are Delegates Edward Block, George Rott, T. Moloney, Thomas E. Kinney, Walter W. Birge and John R. McCarthy.

Promises to Hear Them All.

In opening the meeting Chairman Griffin said that it was called to hear the opponents of the Terminal loop bill. Someone in the audience asked if the advocates of the bill would be allowed to speak in rebuttal, and Mr. Griffin said they would.

When the meeting adjourned there were a dozen men clamoring to be heard, and Chairman Griffin said he would announce another meeting for hearing further arguments next week.

"We will hear you all," said he.

Victor Gebhart was the first speaker, reading a prepared argument against franchise granting in general.

Henry Fairback, president of the Builders' Exchange, said that he wanted to express the opposition of the exchange to the loop bill unless the city was properly compensated for it. "The owners of the Terminal are a selfish lot and they must be watched,' said he. "The vital question is the question of compensation, and it rests with the House to guard the city's interests in this respect. There was some talk about abolishing the House of Delegates, but now I am sure citizens regard it as a godsend that the schemers did not succeed in abolishing you."

S. M. Ryan, president of the Single Tax League, followed Mr. Fairback. He said:

"I am president of the Single Tax League, and I was requested by my people to come here and offer some suggestions because they knew I was posted on the records of the men who appeared before you, recommending that this franchise be granted.

"I have been familiar with their political career for 20 years, and I have never known of them appearing in this chamber, or in any other public body in the city, unless they were animated by some selfish interest. That is the only time they ever get together.

"You are not so young that you will not remember another time they got together for the purpose of getting the Merchants' bridge. You will remember that they said the purpose of the bridge was to do away with the Eads bride monopoly, to drive it over into the water and drown it. They aroused the people, and the bridge was built.

Woke to Find Bridge Gone.

"We give them miles of our city streets without a cent of compensation, and no sooner had they got the bridge than we found that Jay Gould had it in his pocket. They talk in connection with the World's Fair of civic pride, civic honor and civic patriotism, but why is it that the rights of the city of St. Louis have to be bartered away for the World's Fair.

"They say that if this franchise is not granted, the Fair will not be a success. They have $50,000,000 given by the city, state and national governments to spend on the Fair and they say 'We are going to spend it.'

"Are they not our creatures? Are they not our clerks and officers? Are they not going to spend our money, not theirs? It is not their money, it is ours. They got it from the city, they got it from the state, and they got it from the federal government, and now they come back and say they are going to spend it. Now, I want to urge on you the necessity of watching these men carefully; they are all one body and soul, and are animated only by selfish motives."

Alanson D. Brown, President of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., followed Mr. Ryan, presenting the petition of the Washington avenue wholesale men for a St. Louis through bill of lading and regulation of switching charges.

After reading the petition, Mr. Brown said:

"About the easiest work I ever undertook was to get these signatures.

"We want advantages for the passengers to make the World's Fair the greatest that has ever been made, and we want corresponding advantages for merchants. I want to read to you a bill of lading we have just paid: Milwaukee to St. Louis. Three hundred and twenty-three bundles of leather. The charges to East St. Louis were 17 cents per hundred pounds, amounting to $41.40. The charges from East St. Louis to our store were $10.96, or one-fourth as much from East St. Louis to our store as from Milwaukee to East St. Louis.

"We have plenty of money and we always pay our bills, but what we ask of you, gentlemen, as you are now in the saddle, is that you do the very best you can to get for St. Louis the same passenger service and the same freight service that other metropolitan cities have. I believe you have it in your hands to make St. Louis a terminal point."

Mr. Brown filed the bill of lading to which he referred with the committee together with another on 845 cases of shoes from Washue, N. H., dated June 11, 1903.

"On this bill," said Mr. Brown, "we had to pay freight at first class on 26,300 pounds and charges. That is what the bill states, 'and charges.'".

Loop Not Needed for Exposition

J. W. Harris declared that the Terminal loop was not necessary for the World's Fair. "There are thousands of people who will come to the Fair who will not use it all," said he. "That talk is all nonsense. It ought not to be allowed to override all other considerations. You gentlemen were elected on a platform which pledged you to favor proper compensation for the city for its franchises. The Council has broken its pledges and gone over to the franchise grabbers. It remains for you to keep faith and save the city."

J. C. Birge, president of the St. Louis Shovel Co. and the Seymour Manufacturing Co., followed Mr. Harris. He said:

Business Men Not for Bills.

"I presume that every one of the members, Mr. Chairmen, of your honorable committee, as well as the members of the House, desire to give the Terminal every facility which can be given without burdening it with unnecessary expenses or responsibilities, and every one here without doubt feels great pride and interest in the great World's Fair, and we honor its worthy president and all the men who are devoting their time and energies to that work.

"It seems from newspaper reports that it has been stated on this floor that the commercial bodies of St. Louis have expressed themselves here as favoring the passage of these Terminal bills without amendment. I doubt if there has been given to you any expression of the membership of these bodies. The members of the exchange who have addressed you have spoken their own views only. They have not voiced the sentiment of the organization to which they belong.

"The question of excessive bridge charges over the river has been a dominant question in the Exchange for years. Many sessions have been held, year after year, in the hope of solving it. But it is still unsolved.

"It has been stated on this floor, as I understand it, that the terminal charges are not what are driving manufacturers to the other side of the river, leaving their factories as old hulks, uninhabited. But what has driven them there?

Merchants Pay Bridge Charge.

"It is partly the high water tax, which the manufacturers are compelled to pay. But it is chiefly the expense of bringing freight over the river.

"If a shipper in East St. Louis or any of the tri-cities ships a carload lot across the bridge, that freight does not carry 1 cent of bridge toll. The freight rate from East St. Louis is the same as from St. Louis to any point west of St. Louis. They have to pay no bridge toll. Why? The roads absorb it.

"On the other hand, if a manufacturer of St. Louis wishes to ship a carload or 15s pounds to the east side o fthe river, he is compelled to pay, not only the freight from East St. Louis to that point, but the arbitrary, amounting to so much per car, the minimum of which, I believe, is $5, running from that up to a greater amount.

"St. Louis is the only city on the map that pays one cent of bridge tolls, and I defy any representative of the railroads here to controvert that statement. If they do not pay bridge toll, who does it?

"A gentleman, a very extensive coal dealer, stated that his shipments were enormous. He stated subsequently that he paid hundreds of dollars for freight, but added, 'I do not care for the removal of the bridge toll.' Well, why should he? Who pays for the toll on that coal? All he has to do is to add that toll to the price of coal. Every man who buys a pound of coal or gets a barrel of beer or any of the necessities of life pays the toll.

"St. Louis is not on the map of Eastern roads. Everything comes to East St. Louis and then is billed over. It is said that this charge is made because of the enormous cost of the bridge.

"Just look at the other bridges the railroads cross. Why should a special charge be made for crossing the river here? Who ever heard of an extra charge being made for that part of road which goes through the Hoosac tunnel, although it cost more than the bridges here? Then why should they make this charge in St. Louis. Only put us on the same conditions as other cities on every railroad in the United States."

S. L. Moser, a member of the Single Tax League and of the equal taxation committee, read to the committee the provisions of the act of Congress authorizing the Merchants' bridge, which forbade the consolidation of this bridge with any other across the river, the pooling of its earnings with those of any other bridge company and the membership of any one of its stockholders, directors or managers in any other bridge company.

The act provides that in case this prohibition is infringed, the secretary of war shall take possession of the bridge for the United States government.

The act of Congress says this provision was inserted because the bridge was asked for to break the monopoly then held by the Eads bridge.

"Under this act," said Mr. Moser, "it is my opinion that the secretary of war could today take charge of the Merchants' bridge and operate it. The bridge was built to prevent monopoly and exorbitant rates. It was sold out by the persons who secured the grant to build it, and is now in the hands of a monopoly. Its purpose has been defeated, and the spirit of the act of Congress has been defeated."

Business Men Afraid to Speak

Mr. Moser said further: "I know that the Terminal Association is intimidating business men. Many are afraid to speak their opposition. Today I asked a friend of mine who belongs to the Merchants' Exchange to come to this meeting and he replied that he dared not, although he was heartily in favor of the protests that are being made.

"I know coal dealers who are the same way. I asked two to come to this meeting. They replied, 'We want the restrictions taken off and we want relief from excessive rates, but we are afraid to say anything.'

"These men are big shippers, and the Terminal has them in its power. That is the reason they are afraid."

Thomas Waters, on behalf of the Central Trades and Labor Union, presented a resolution passed by that body, which he said represented thousands of laboring men in St. Louis, protesting against the Terminal grab bill and urging that proper compensation be secured for the city.

Mr. Waters also compared the freight rates from Chicago and from St. Louis to common points, showing that Chicago had the better end of the bargain.

"The friends of the Terminal have told us that we had better rates than other cities. I looked it up to see. This is what I found:

"I take the rate on coffee to the Southwest as an example. From Chicago the rate is 37 cents to Little Rock. The Chicago wholesale grocer pays that.

"Now the rate from Chicago to East St. Louis is 15 cents. From East St. Louis to St. Louis is 3 cents and from St. Louis to Little Rock 30 cents.

"As a result the St. Louis wholesaler, if he gets his coffee from Chicago, ships it to St. Louis and then sells it from here to Little Rock must pay a total freight rate of 15 plus 3 plus 30, or 48 cents. The Chicago man has the advantage of him by 11 cents per hundred pounds. The 3 cents per hundred goes to the Terminal."

Loop Not for World's Fair.

Frank A. J. Hiller, representing the Tower Grove Improvement Association, said:

"What the business men of Tower Grove want is the removal of the terminals from East St. Louis to St. Louis. They believe St. Louis can never get fair treatment in the matter of rates and switching charges until this is done.

"They want particularly a reduction of rates. The rates on coal are specially too high. It costs the dealers in my neighborhood $12, $13 and $14 a car to get the coal out to their places.

"A big coal dealer here said to-day that he did not mind the bridge toll. That's all [illegible] people do mind.

BRIDGE ARBITRARY AN OUTWORN SYSTEM

Other Cities, Notably Louisville, Cincinnati and Omaha, Have Done Away With Like Unjust Charges.

In the petition signed by 29 Washington avenue wholesale firms, presented to the railroad committee of the House of Delegates Friday night, a through bill of lading for St. Louis and definite switching charges are insisted on.

These demands are the same as those made by the St. Louis Manufacturers' Association through L. D. Kingsland, its president, both being presented in connection with the terminal loop grab bill.

Alanson D. Brown, president of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., presented the petition of the wholesale men. It is as follows:

BRIDGE ARBITRARY RELIC OF SYSTEM WHICH OTHER CITIES HAVE CAST OFF

"To the Honorable Railroad Committee, House of Delegates, St. Louis, Mo.

"Gentlemen: We, the undersigned shippers of St. Louis, respectfully urge upon you the necessity of insisting on a St. Louis bill of lading and definite switching chares. All other cities that have bridge arbitraries have done away with them, and St. Louis stands alone allowing this unjust charge to continue. We refer particularly to Louisville, Cincinnati and Omaha.

"To have an equal show with other cities for competion in the world's business, you and we must recognize that better service must be had for St. Louis from the railroad companies.

"We know that 24 or 48 hours are now consumed in getting goods from the East Side to St. Louis that will be done away with as soon as we have a through St. Louis bill of lading.

"St. Louis, by reason of its high ground east of Third street, has every advantage over the East Side for temrinal facilities, which the recent floods (and which floods the past has shown will ocur from time to time) have clearly demonstrated, which floods put the merchants' goods at the mercy of the water and delay indefinitely the delivery of those that are not destroyed or damaged.

"We ask for better railroad facilities, and know that your honorable body is now in a position to grant same and beg of you in behalf of our Louis the greatest in the United Stae of this opportunity to make St. growing city that you take advantagtes. You never will make a city of St. Louis until you make it a terminal point.

must pay the terminal's charges on the coal.

"President Francis says the loop is necessary for the World's Fair. Now I have all respect for President Francis. I think he has done a great work and I believe he is one of our best men, but he is only mortal and may make mistakes like the rest of us.

"He says we must have the loop to handle World's Fair traffic. Now in the first place the loop will not handle a single passenger to the World's Fair ground. it couldn't if it tried.

"In the second place we could get along without the terminal and handle World's Fair traffic. Mr. Francis says the transit company was not equal to the emergency on Dedication Day. I know from experience that the Chouteau avenue line to the grounds was not crowded at any time. And there are four railroads, the Missouri Pacific, the Wabash, the Frisco and the Rock Island, which can handle passengers to the World's Fair if they want to."

Mr. Hiller referred to the Hoyt Metal Co. as being about to move to East St. Louis on account of the bridge arbitrary. Delegate Birge of the railroad committee said he had heard that statement from Mr. Hoyt and he asked R. L. Mc Connor, traffic manager of the company, who was present, to state the facts in the case. Mr. Connor said:

"Yes, we are compelled to move our plant to East St. Louis because of the high freight charges. I have before me figures which I took from the Post-Dispatch of June 1, under the heading, 'The Last Chance to Shake Off the Bridge Arbitrary.' These figures were made up by Mr. Hoyt and myself, and we know just what we are talking about.

"We handle at our plant on the Wabash track approximately 2500 tons of metal per month. Of these 2500 tons approximately 2000 tons come from the West and 500 tons from the East. Of our finished product, fully 95 per cent is shipped to points east of the river. As we are now located we receive the 2000 tons from western points at practically the same cost to St. Louis as the material would cost in East St. Louis, but the 500 tons which we receive from the East cost us 2 cents higher per hundred pounds at our works.

East Side Rate More Favorable

"The shipments from the West are delivered in East St. Louis at the St. Louis rate, because otherwise, shippers would send freight by the Chicago & Alton and Burlington lines, which cross the river north of St. Louis and have no terminals in St. Louis. Their terminals are in East St. Louis. We therefore pay a tax on outgoing shipments on 2300 tons of 2 cents a hundred, or 40 cents a ton, making $920 a month.

"In addition to this we pay a tax of 30 cents a ton on our coal and 2 cents a hundred on the 500 tons of the material that comes to us from the East, making $200 for incoming shipments and $920 for outgoing shipments, and shipments on coal bring these costs up to $1420 a month.

"With the business we are doing today we cannot see our way clear to stay in St. Louis, and an option was taken today for a site in East St. Louis.

How a Mammoth Plant Was Lost.

Frank H. Gerhart, a real estate man, said he was employed by the Federal Lead Co. a year ago to assist in selecting a site for a plant in St. Louis.

The search was suddenly stopped while the freight rate question was investigated. As a result, the company announced that it could not locate in St. Louis on account of the bridge arbitrary and switching charges.

"As a result of the arbitrary we lost that plant," said Mr. Gerhart. "It is now in Alton, employing 200 men. The company is building a town known as Republic City, in which the men and their families live. Those we lost at one swoop."

Attorney James R. Waddill, representing the levee property owners, said:

"Mr. Chairman, I represent the property owners along the levee. I have been requested to come here this afternoon and present one phase that has not been presented.

"The owners of property fronting on the levee have suffered already by the elevated road along their property, and they submitted to that and accepted it because it was said that a great benefit was to be done to the commerce of the city and that a bridge would be built that would afford relief from the monopoly of the Eads bridge.

Promis[illegible]

[illegible] failed, and the bridge [illegible] the other bridge. The whole thing is one, and these men have had their property depreciated and suffered the inconvenience of having the road run into the upper stories of their houses. And now it is proposed to put 31 feet more in front of them.

"I would remind you that this 31 feet takes up all of Front street. It leaves nothing but that incline, and in time of high water there is no levee there.

"What is this levee for? To whom does it belong? Whose rights and interests does it subserve?

"It was granted to these people when St. Louis was but a French village, and through all these years it has been there for but one purpose, for river navigation. It was never granted for railroad purposes, but for the river commerce of the city of St. Louis.

"Since the river commerce went down, for a quarter of a century almost, there has been a fight for deep water to the Southern sea and I tell you the prospect of that realization is nearer at hand today than it has been in the history of the Mississippi river.

"The day is coming when there will be a deep channel down the Mississippi to the Mexican gulf. When that day comes we can have will be needed. When that day comes vast tons of our commerce will float out to foreign ports, down through the gulf, down through the Mississippi, through its deep water. Now are any of you shortsighted enough today not to see that you will not hammer and so cramp the levee of St. Louis, granted for navigation purposes, for river commerce alone, that when the government of the United States awakens, as it will awaken, and spends millions of dollars in a deep-water route to the sea, a great and permanent injury will be done. You will have 35 years or 50 years of vested rights given to this railroad corporation.

Let Terminal Buy Its Land.

"I have nothing but good will towards the Terminal Association, so have my clients, but let the Terminal do as it has done from the mouth of the bridge, let it occupy its own land. Let it buy and occupy the land, and not destroy the property of the present owners of land along the levee. Let it buy the land of those who own it or let it go west and run its road on its own property, not taking the levee on which the value of this Front street propery depends, and upon which the future commerce of the Mississippi depends, and which was granted solely and only for river commerce.

"That is why these men are protesting. They are not fighting the World's Fair. Every citizen of St. Louis wants the World's Fair. We all want it just as much as Gov. Francis or anybody else, but there are some rights of the individuals; there are some rights of this municipality, and there are some rights of the commerce of this city outside of the World's Fair and the Terminal association, and it is for these rights that I stand here to contend.

"I wish to impress upon you the importance of this levee to the people of St. Louis and the primary rights of the owners of the property that front upon it. There are vested rights here, which, I say, the city of St. Louis cannot take from them, even though this bill is passed. The city of St. Louis cannot destroy the property of the citizen. The Terminal corporation cannot do it. They have no such right, and if this ordinance passes and it is sought to run this road over that levee, I think you will hear echoes for years in the courts as the right of this corporation to occupy that levee in that way. I do not believe there is any such right. It is there for river commerce. There are words in the grant which give the levee for the river commerce of St. Louis and the Mississippi river.'

James S. Brown told of the reasons for building the Merchants' bridge. He said:

"I come here at rather a late hour and find that most of the ground has been well threshed over. I had in mind speaking of the delight with which me hailed the opening of the Eads bridge. Our pleasure and expectation was but short lived. Our business men and merchants and citizens became restless under the rule of the monopolies and sought the means of breaking this monopoly and giving the people fair and equitable rates. Congress granted a concession to build a new bridge, your body and the Council of this city granted extensive franchises, and the people seemed to breathe anew. They raised up their heads and seemed to say, 'We are somebody, we are going to have rates and we are going to have business.' They were again deceived. It was like lifting us from the house of bondage and sinking us into the depths of hell.

"Now they come to us in the interest of the World's Fair, of which I am most proud and which I have given my efforts to make it a success and to which I have contributed my money. They say that for 165 days you must submit to this Terminal Association every day they ask. I to you, it is like a man having a glorious time for 185 days and then having a terrible headache and a bad stomach for the balance of his days.

"We have got to consider the advantage to be derived from this, and every one of you should go into it thoroughly, according to all equal rights and special favors to none. They come here and tell you that they are willing to pay $110,000 for the privilege of bringing coal over the river and having their stock stopped on the other side of the river, as it was two winters ago, the poor people of St. Louis are compelled to pay 50 cents a basket for coal. The coal was over there, and they could not get it unless they paid that excessive price.

"They tell you about this tunnel: that it is a terrible thing. Breckenridge Jones comes here and says that consumptives and persons in poor health, coming through St. Louis to Colorado or other places for their health, are obliged to pass through this tunnel.

"What is objectionable about the tunnel? The obnoxious fumes can easily be done away with. Let them spend a little money, and the tunnel will be equal to any tunnel in the country. I say keep the tunnel. Oblige them to clean it properly, and we will not be sorry for it.

"In regard to these 14 roads, they have come together of their own free will. They have a good thing and want to keep it, and they want us to give them more, as we did in the Merchants' bridge case. Probably they will barter it away, but if they do they will drive the best bargain that they can. They will not give anything away."

HOUSE PRAISED FOR ATTITUDE

St. Louis, Mo., June 20.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The business men, manufacturers, real estate men, etc., who appeared before the railroad committee of the house yesterday evening in behalf of the protection of the manufacturing interests of St. Louis and the city's franchise interests, deserve hearty applause and everlasting thanks of their colleagues and of citizens for their fearless stand taken against the existing bridge arbitrary and the proposed terminal grab. They have set an example which should call out at the next public meeting of the committee on this subject every business man, manufacturer and citizen who will stand up for the rights of his own interests and those of his fellow citizens, in numbers filling the house from floor to dome, and by a preponderance of numbers show the advocates of terminal methods and continuance of bridge arbitrary that they are in the minority and that the interests of the common people and business men are and must be paramount, remembering that alertness and perseverance backed by facts and honest methods will win this fight.

The railroad committee of the House of Delegates deserves thanks and everlasting respect from all who are opposed to the Terminal grab. They have shown themselves public-spirited and worthy by the position which they have taken in not allowing themselves to be bulldozed out of giving the public a chance to present its side of the case. Their patience and liberal meetings are in great contrast with those held by the railroad committee of the Council, and I am sure that all of us who are fighting for the protection of our city will not forget the House of Delegates who have had the backbone to stick to the citizens.

THREE SISTERS OF TROY WED THREE BROTHERS

THREE SISTERS BROTHERS WIVES

Heck Girls of Troy, Ill., Marry Only Isenberg Young Men.

ONE SAID SHE'D NEVER MARRY AN ISENBERG

But She Capitulated at Last and the Third Interfamily Marriage Took Place—Husbands Are All Younger Than Wives.

"I will never marry an Isenberg," declared Miss Emilia Heck of Troy, Ill., when two of her sisters married Isenberg boys three years ago. Sunday morning, however, Miss Emilia married Emil Isenberg, and the Heck and Isenberg families are now united by three matrimonial ties.

The wedding Sunday was not unexpected in Troy, for ever since Miss Bertha and Miss Lena Heck married Isenbergs in 1900, the friends of Miss Emilia have been keeping a close watch on her love affairs. Lately she has shown no disposition to keep those matters to herself. She announced a few weeks ago that she would wed Emil Isenberg on Sunday, June 14.

The wedding took place in the Lutheran Church immediately after the pastor, Rev. Martin Deipp, concluded his morning sermon. The church was crowded with the high and low of the little town.

Miss Bertha's marriage—she was the first of the Heck family to wed an Isenberg—was not expected. The courtship between her and Charles Isenberg had been conducted quietly and not even her closest relatives imagined that the two were engaged.

About three months before the wedding Miss Bertha came to St. Louis and though separated from her fiance by 30 miles of Illinois soil, she kept up a regular correspondence with him. Finally Charles decided that he had waited long enough and to St. Louis he came to claim his bride.

When he left Troy, he told the Heck family that he was going to marry one of the daughters, but none of the family believed him. They thought he was joking until they saw a notice of the issuance of the marriage license in the St. Louis papers.

The ceremony was performed on April 4, 1900, by Judge Walker of St. Louis, and as soon as the nuptial knot was tied Mr. and Mrs. Charles Isenberg returned to Troy to receive the congratulations of their friends.

Three months later, Miss Lena Heck was married to Louis Isenberg at the home of Rev. Louis Dornseif, who was then pastor of the Lutheran Church in Troy. It was at this time that Miss Emilia said she would never marry an Isenberg. Perhaps she was provoked because the Isenberg young men had demonstrated their skill in capturing the hearts of the Heck girls.

A mild romance was behind the wedding of Charles and Bertha and indirectly behind the other two marriages. For it is conceivable that if Charles Isenberg had not won the heart of Bertha Heck the other Isenberg boys would have been equally unsuccessful.

Charles found an opportunity to court his future wife just because Miss Lena Isenberg was compelled to go to a meeting of a church society.

On a Sunday afternoon about nine months before the first wedding, Miss Lena Heck was at the home of Mrs. Louis Figge. There she met Charles Isenberg, who expressed a wish to see Miss Heck's sister. Accordingly at Miss Lena's suggestion he accompanied her to her home.

The brother was not in, and Lena had made arrangements to go to a meeting of the Young Ladies' Society of the Lutheran Church. Consequently Miss Bertha, who was at home, was compelled to entertain the young man, and the entertainment has continued to this day.

Miss Lena Heck became acquainted with the Isenbergs through her acquaintance with Miss Louise Isenberg. After Charles began to woo Miss Bertha it was very easy for Lena to fall into the habit of going with Louis. Soon these two were engaged and the wedding took place before a year had elapsed.

For two years after her sisters were married, Miss Emilia Heck remembered her vow, but one evening a year ago Emil Isenberg asked the privilege of escorting her home. She consented and soon she had forgotten her vow. The upshot of it all was that she was married last Sunday.

A peculiar feature about the Isenberg-Heck alliances is that the youngest sister married first, and that all the husbands are younger than their wives. Mrs. Bertha Isenberg is one year the senior of her life companion, while Mrs. Lena Isenberg has seen six years more of life than has her husband, Louis.

Mrs. Bertha Isenberg is 26 years old, while her husband is but 25. Miss Emilia Isenberg is 27, while her husband is but 23. Mrs. Lena Isenberg is 32, while her husband is 26.

REVENGEFUL COOK HEAVILY FINED

Ella Cooper, a Negress, Threatened Mrs. Ambs With 8-Inch Knife.

Mrs. Charles Ambs of 3410 Pine street, her daughter Mae, and the negro coachman, William Cooper, all appeared in the First district police court to prosecute Ella Cooper, a negress and former cook for the Ambs family.

Ella was discharged by Mrs. Ambs a short time ago, and Friday night she returned for revenge. She carried an eight-inch bowie knife.

Mrs. Ambs heard a scratching at the screen door on the second floor porch, and was about to open it, thinking the cat was scratching to get in. As she was unfastening the door, her daughter called that it was Ella with a knife in her hand.

Mrs. Ambs took refuge under the bed and called for the police. A policeman passing the house, went to the rear to investigate. Ella was struggling in the grasp of the coachman and was clubbed before she would submit to arrest.

Judge Tracy fined her $100.

PLANNED ST. LOUIS VISIT

Letter Received After Dr. I. N. Love's Death Tells of His Trip Abroad.

Twenty-four hours after the death of Dr. I. N. Love on the steamer Aurania, while returning from Europe, a St. Louisan received a letter written by the famous surgeon.

It was dated but a few hours before Dr. Love dropped dead in the dining-room of the Aurania, and contained an interesting account of his experiences abroad.

The letter also told of the hold taken upon European nations by the World's Fair, as result of the recent visit of President David R. Francis. Dr. Love stated that his medical confreres in Germany, Holland, France, England and Ireland had expressed to him their intentions of attending the Exposition.

The letter teemed with affectionate remarks concerning St. Louis. Dr. Love's former home before he became established in New York City, and he expressed the hope that he might soon come on a visit and renew old friendships.

FAINTING SPELLS

THEY INDICATE A DANGEROUS CONDITION OF HEALTH.

Women so Afflicted are Usually the Victims of a Weakness Which May Be Unsuspected.

Fainting spells and a tendency to faint away upon slight excitement indicate a condition of health that shonld be attended to without delay. The great majority of those so afflicted are women and the cause can generally be traced to female weakness, often of long standing and frequently unsuspected. "My health had become all run down," says Miss Catherine J. Ball, of No. 375 Bates avenue, St. Paul, Minn., "and I had frequent fainting spells. I was pale and sallow and suffered regularly from a terrible headache and a soreness in my right side below the waist. I had no strength, the slightest exertion tired me and made me short of breath. My stomach troubled me at times and I never felt as a well person ought to feel. I doctored for three months but the physicians did not help me much and it was not until I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I began to improve. In less than a week after beginning with these pills I could see a change for the better and in a short time I was well. My complexion became pure and healthy, the soreness disappeared, I am no longer troubled with faintness and I feel perfectly well and strong."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure cases like this because they go to the root of the disease. Not only have they cured hundreds of cases similar to Miss Ball's but they have proven themselves to be an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood and shattered nerves—two fruitful causes of nearly all of the ills to which humankind is heir. They are an unfailing specific for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in boxes at fifty cents a box or six boxes for two dollars and a half, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. The genuine are never sold by the dozen or hundred.

UNEASY SPIRIT AT CHAMPION'S REST

It Rebelled When New Manager Undertook to Change Things.

IT RANG THE BELL AND SMASHED GLASSES

Linoleum Man Was Sent Away and Sawdust and the Old Fixtures Will Remain Out of Respect to the Departed.

Denizens of Market street, whose habitat is the saloons between Sixth and Tenth streets, have a mystery. They are trying to account for the ringing of Tom Allen's bell.

When Tom named the place "Champion's Rest," he thought only of the rest for his old age, which it was to be.

His housekeeper, Tillie Hartgrove, took possession under a document purporting to be the will of Tom Allen, while Allen's daughter was left out in the cold, so far as a share in the inheritance went.

Proceedings to dispossess the housekeeper were brought by the daughter before the father was fairly buried, but the court probated the will and a manager was put in to run the place.

This manager had been a bartender under Allen, and he knew the ways of Allen well enough to keep the old trade and run the place as Allen had done. But he did not see it that way, and the "Weary Willies" that used to bunk under the piano were unceremoniously fired out whenever the midnight trade fell off enough to warrant closing the doors that in Allen's time had never been locked.

The prize ring simplicity that had characterized the place in the champion's regime was to give way to the tinsel and glitter of the modern bar. Sawdust was no longer to cover the floor, and a measurer from a carpet house was called in to make estimates for a linoleum outfit.

Outside the door the old patrons of the place often stopped and many a head was shaken with the remark:

"Poor, old Tom. Wouldn't he turn over in his grave at such goings on."

The man from the carpet house was figuring at a table in the concert hall, a table where Allen used to sit and drink his ice water. With him sat the manager and two tall glasses adorned the table.

A sound of warring voices rose above the noise of traffic on the street, and the two men went to the door.

Suddenly the bell behind the bar rang.

There was only one push button connected with it and no one had ever pressed it except Allen when he wanted a drink or a bouncer to quell a riot.

"What are you doing to that bell, you rascal?" shouted the manager at the negro porter.

"I nevar tetched it, sah,' returned the porter.

Again it sounded, more insistently than before.

The porter retreated to the end of the bar nearest the door and again the bell rang out followed by a crash of glasses.

The manager was game, and he walked back into the concert hall.

There on the table where the carpet salesman had been figuring was a pool of what had been "forty-rod" whisky highballs. Both glasses were broken and the estimate of the salesman, which had been written with an indelible pencil, blotted and blurred beyond the power of man to decipher.

"What was it," said the carpet man, "a cat?"

"Cats don't ring bells," said the manager, "and we haven't a cat about the place."

"Well, what do you think it was?" insisted the carpet man as he started to make out a new estimate on the linoleum question.

"I don't think anything about it; but say, we might as well call this deal off. Tom Allen don't want no linoleum on his floor and I guess sawdust will be the carpet of this place while I run it."

The new plate glass mirrors were taken out the same day and the old wrinkled one put back behind the bar. The place is again just as Tom Allen left it and the old trade is coming back to be well received.

This mystery has not been brought to the notice of the Society for Psychical Research as yet, but the Market street world grows more confident each day that it was nothing else than the spirit of Tom Allen come back to this world to make known to the new regime that the old ways and surroundings had been good enough for him and to protest against the planned innovations.

Over the push button will be placed a box, that no strange hand may press it unawares. As for the habitues, they give that table a wide berth, not, as they say, that they are afraid, but, "Tom might not like it, you know," is the reason assigned.

None of the many visitors of the past few days has failed to be impressed with the story except an advance agent of a well-known actress, who was run out of the place in a hurry because he winked at the manager during the telling of the story.

CLASS RENDERED PROGRAM

Graduation Exercises of Belleville High School Participated in by Eighteen Graduates.

At commencement exercises of the Belleville High School Friday evening at Liederkranz Hall diplomas were awarded to 18 graduates, 10 girls and 8 boys.

The very creditable program was rendered by the members of the class. The choral selections were especially fine, and showed the careful training of Prof. Ludwig Carl of the Choral Symphony Society.

Miss Augusta Bender spoke the salutation and the oration, "Ready," by Miss Grace Heinzelman, came next, followed by a declamation, "Hope," by Miss Sophie Gauss "Selbstvertraun," an oration, was spoken in German, by Miss Adele Joerg, and "The Dignity of Labor" was Charles Mullen's oration.

After the piano solo by Miss Lulu Halstead, Alvin A. Miller and William E. Slade, for the affirmative, and Charles E. Quigley and Herman Rhein, for the negative, debated, "Resolved, that Belleville should own and operate its own waterworks."

Lawrence V. Selle delivered the class oration on "Deeds, Not Words," and Miss Elsie Graf spoke in German the declamation, "America's Schaetze."

"He Conquers Who Perseveres," the class motto, was the subject of Theodore F. Smith's oration.

The class prophecy for the boys was read by Miss Ethel Jones, and for the girls by Clyde Miller. Miss Elma Tindale, the class poet, read her verses.

Miss Posey E. Woelk gave the valedictory, and Adam Ehret, president of the school board, presented the diplomas.

HOGAN LOSES HIS SUIT.

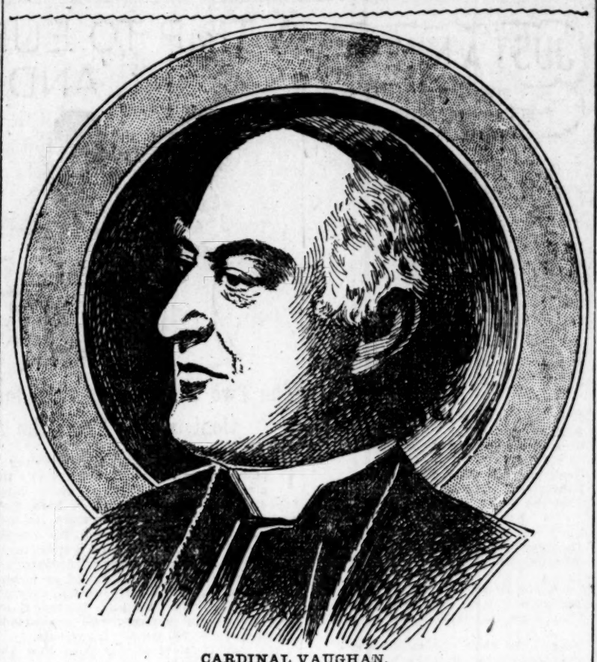

Street Lighting Case Against the City of St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 20.—Division No. 1 of the Missouri supreme court met this morning and, after rendering opinions in 13 cases of minor importance, adjourned to July 1, on which date the court will meet and adjourn for the summer vacation.

John B. Hogan lost his suit against St. Louis City. This was a suit to enjoin the city from carrying out a contract with the Kern Incandescent Gaslight Co. for lighting the streets. Hogan appealed to the supreme court, where the judgment of the St. Louis court was affirmed today in division No. 1, in an opinion by Judge Valliant.

CARDINAL VAUGHAN DIES IN LONDON

CARDINAL VAUGHAN.

Long Regarded as One of the Most Eminent Teachers of the Church of Rome.

LONDON, June 20.—The Very Rev. Herbert Vaughan, cardinal and archbishop of Westminster, died at midnight. He had been ill more than three months. Late in March it was thought he could not survive more than a few days.

The cardinal was 71 years old, born April 15, 1832. He was one of the most eminent prelates of the Catholic church. A few years ago Cardinal Vaughan declared that the spirit of greed had mastered Christendom, and that the prospect for humanity was almost as bad as it could be. The cardinal was the Roman Catholic archbishop of Westminster, and had long been prominent among the teachers of his church in the British Isles. In 1892, on the death of Cardinal Manning, he was elected to Westminster, and one year later he was summoned to Rome and created a cardinal.

His speeches on religious subjects have been the occasion of much controversy, especially that one in which he discussed the validity of the Angelican orders. Cardinal Vaughan was formerly a member of the Oblates of St. Charles, a congregation founded by Cardinal Manning.

Cardinal Vaughan came from a family which, while not noble in title, is one of the oldest and most honorable in the realm. It has been a Roman Catholic family through all the vicissitudes of the faith since the time of Henry VIII. Five of Cardinal Vaughan's brothers are in the priesthood and one of his sisters was a Sister of Mercy. He was born at Stonyhurst, the family seat, ordained a priest at Lucca in 1854, consecrated bishop of Salford in 1872 and translated to Westminster in 1892 to succeed the late Cardinal Manning, and was named cardinal a year later.

In the years of his administration he has shown himself eminently qualified to deal with the many difficult and delicate questions arising in his ecclesiastical realm. A few years ago he precipitated a controversy in religious circles in England which raged for a long period by proposing terms for the absorption of the Prostestant sects within the fold of the Roman Church. In that controversy he displayed rare powers as a theological debater. The cardinal is said to have had a hobby for collecting money for objects he had at heart. Some 37 years ago he went to America to collect funds for a missionary college. Although this then Pope gave him his blessing, he strongly besought the young English priest not to go on with what he though a fruitless errand. However, Father Vaugh came back with a good sum, and with characteristic fearlessness wrote to the Pope's secretary: "Tell his holiness that his blessing was worth more than his prophecy."

CHICAGO REALTY MEN VISIT FAIR

They Say St. Louis Will Escape Injurious Reaction in 1905.

Forty-eight prosperous-looking members of the Chicago Real Estate Board, are the guests today of the St. Louis colony of real estate dealers and the World's Fair officials.

They arrived Friday evening in Alton on a special train, and made the trip to St. Louis by boat, reaching St. Louis at 9 o'clock. They were escorted to the Southern Hotel by a committee of St. Louis realty men, consisting of Sidney Schiele, A. R. Schollmeyer, F. T. Parker and Albert T. Terry.

The visiting Chicagoans assembled in the rotunda of the Southern at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and marched to the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, 110 North Eighth street, where they were formally welcomed by President William A. Giraldin.

The hall of the exchange was tastefully decorated in honor of the guests, and a number of humorous notices were posted on the bulletin boards.

After an informal reception on the floor of the exchange, the entertainment committee, headed by Chairman Albert T. Terry, escorted the visitors to the Anheuser-Busch brewery.

Visit to Fair Carriage Ride.

Shortly before noon they started from the brewery for the World's Fair grounds, to be entertained at luncheon.

The program for the afternoon includes an inspection of the World's Fair buildings, a ride through the residence district and dinner at Forest Park cottage.

The Chicago delegation plans to depart for home at 11:40 tonight, though it is thought some of them will remain to spend Sunday in St. Louis.

Wyllys W. Baird, president of the Chicago real estate board, says the citizens of Chicago are deeply interested in the St. Louis World's Fair and are sincere in their wishes for its success.

Chicago Reaction Has Now Ended.

From what he has learned, Mr. Baird says there will not be so much indiscriminate building in connection with the fair in St. Louis as there was in Chicago. He also expresses the opinion that there will not be so marked a reaction in real estate here as there was in Chicago after the Fair of 1893. He said that Chicago has entirely recovered from the reaction.

The officers of the board are: Wyllys W. Baird, president; Valentine H. Surghnor, vice-president; James A. McLane, secretary; and W. J. Gallup, assistant secretary.

The other members of the party are as follows: Henry H. Banford, Bruce B. Barney, John A. Carroll, Benjamin R. De Young, Frank M. Elliot, Calhatus S. Ennis, David M. Ereskine, James B. Galloway, E. Orris Hart, Frank G. Hoyne, Lewis E. Ingalls, Robert E. Ismond, Edward S. Judd, Thomas H. Kelley, William D. Kerfoot, Adolph F. Kramer, J. Fred McGuire, Aaron B. Mead, Walter Mills, Frederick S. Oliver, Charles B. Rice, Willis G. Stoughton, Oliver L. Watson, Julius A. Wendell, C. H. Castle, Willard T. Block, Gustaf H. Carlson, Gustaf H. Carlson, Jr., H. W. Culbertson, O. G. Williams, George M. Chamberlin, Frank R. Chandler, F. H. Doland, Thomas Knight, Arthur W. Hawxhurst, Ralph S. Greenlee, Charles F. Gunther, L. Gustavve Hallbert, William M. Hoyt, Phelps B. Hoyt, James Hubbard, Cuthbert W. Laing, G. B. Read, John C. McKeon, Henry H. Walker.

In Hurry to Celebrate.

Willie Knight, aged 11, of 1234 North Eighth street, got in a hurry about Fourth of July and started the celebration Friday. Dr. Thomas thinks it possible that he may save one of his eyes. Willie purchased a can of powder and touched it off with a match.

WED IN SADDLE UNDER OAK TREE

maining in their saddles the while. Scarcely had the fingers of the preacher closed upon his fee, when off they went again, leaving him lost in wonder as to the cause of this unseemly haste.

Soon came the straggling procession of friends and again was the dinner interrupted, this time to hear what had caused the haste of the two who had just been wedded.

Even the Dryad in the oak tree put her head out into the broad daylight to hear the story of this modern Lochinvar and his bride.

When they learned that the marriage had been performed without their presence or assistance the disappointed friends, among whom was Orr's sister, made their way back at a less rapid gait and the newly wedded were allowed to go their way without pursuit to their new home.

All this time the mother was trying to worm out of the only witness of the first elopement some statement of her daughter's plans.

Daughter Wrote for Her Trunk.

On the morrow she was enlightened by a letter from her daughter, which said in part:

"We are married. Please send my trunk."

At first both mother and father were inclined to be angry over the way in which the young folks had taken matters into their own hands, but the romantic side of the affair soon softened the heart of the mother, while the father looked at the more practical side and put the cost of the home wedding that was to have been down on the credit side of his ledger.

When the elopers return they will find the fatted calf ready for the table and will receive a warm wicome from the many friends of the bride, who have already sent her the gifts that were in readiness for the more prosaic home ceremony.

COLLEGE GRAD'S SING-FEST

Harvard, Princeton and Yale Men Rivals in Song Tournament at Cherokee Garden.

Sixty graduates from Yale, Harvard and Princeton held a "sing-fest" at Cherokee Garden Friday night. During the buffet lunch college drinking songs were sung with undergraduate enthusiasm.

After the supper groups of the men from the colleges represented formed and each in turn sang the well-remembered songs of the alma mater until their voices gave out. Some of those participating were:

Harvard, E. M. Grossman, John G. Cole, George G. Carpenter, Jr., Eugene H. Augert, George D. Markham, Nathaniel Allison, Harold W. Jones, E. C. Peper, John W. Day, Eugene Pettus, T. Seymour Hall, Ralph Simpkins, O. F. Richards, Sears Lehman, Dwight F. Davis, H. C. Thorn, William H. Grimes.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is an unexcelled medicine for children while teething.

St. John's Poor Boxes Robbed.

A poor box thief stole $15 from the poor boxes at St. John's Church Friday. Rev. Father Coffey reported the theft to the police.

HOROSCOPE CAST FOR THE BROWNS

Seer Studies Orbit of Team and Figures Constellations.

Jim McAleer was in the dumps;
Right mournful was his face,
His baseball team had gots its bumps
And couldn't stand the pace.

Until one day there came a team,
The Senators by name,
And Jim's cohorts did make them seem
Most marvelously tame.

And then James Mac felt like new wine,
And quoth with cheerful vim:
"I see there are worse teams than mine"—
And now he's Sunny Jim.

—From the Philosophy of P. J. Donovan. Canto I: 'Getting Over It,'" by R. L. H.

No matter how bad one may be, there are always others worse.

—From the Philosophy of P. J. Donovan.

A little force, properly applied, goes a long way in the base-ball column.

—Recipes of Sunny Jim.

A baseball fan wandered into the offices of a well-known dealer in astral mysteries. He laid down a $20 bill, companion to one he lost on Sylvia Talbot yesterday, and said:

"This for you if you will shake a few stars up in the box and throw me a future for the Browns Baseball Club."

The seer regretfully shoved the yellow beauty back.

"Sir," he remarked sadly, "ask me an easier one. I have been examining the peculiarities of that constellation for some time, and its orbit has not yet been located. You will readily see that, not knowing its orbit, I cannot tell when it will come into conjunction with favorable or unfavorable conditions, and therefore cannot handicap the team or make selections."

"Take another peek, just for luck," remarked the fan.

"I'll try," said the seer, as he nailed the $20 into his inside vest pocket. "Come back in an hour."

When the fan came back the hoary-headed Cagliostro handed him a swell parchment with $19.70 worth of fringe on it—the 30 cents worth was horoscope.

This read as follows:

"The constellation of baseball stars known as the Browns is now in the ascendant at something above 45 degrees above the horizon—or about half way to the zenith. The group is moving at a fast rate of speed, and is expected to come into conjunction with Mars shortly. This change is recent, as the course of the group shortly before, was downward.

Lobsters Seem to Be Senators.

"The sign of the great bear is close to the flying group, which seems to be heading for the polar star. The great dipper is being passed. A phase of the rapid advance of the Browns is the complete absorption of the group known as the "lobster." Directly in the path of the Browns is an approaching comet of unusual size and brilliancy. According to calculations it should strike the Browns in about two days.

"Following is the interpretation of the signs:

"The lobsters, I surmise to be the Washington team. The speed of the Browns overwhelms this group. Victory over the Washington team may be safely predicted. The ascendant course of the constellation indicates that the team will rise in the percentage column shortly.

"Its conjunction with Mars indicates a growing aggressiveness and the proximity of the great bear, the emblem of the state of Missouri. Indicates that the team will have to be shown before it is beaten.

"The significance of the great dipper in connection with the Browns is somewhat obscure, but the meaning of the comet is quite clear. The Philadelphia team will be here about the time the comet is expected to strike the Browns' constellation. If the Browns survive the shock all will go well, and the onward march toward the pennant, indicated by the polar star, will be continued."

Same Old Game as at Track.

The fan studied the program carefully and sighed.

"They're all alike. It's just like that horoscope of the Derby I had cast last night, which said that if Claude didn't win probably Savable or Judge Himes or Flocarline or Linguist or some other horse would.

"I guess I'll go out to the game today and cast a horoscope myself. If the Browns ever get into conjunction with base hits regularly I think they will win. The fourth sign of the Zodiac, which is the 'Crab,' ought to be in the ascendant. The 'Crab' got three yesterday."

The fan will see the Washington team face the Browns again today should he go to Sportsman's Park. Frank Donahue, with a new pair of cuff buttons, will be on hand to pitch for the Browns.

By persisting, John Powell finally caught Dame Fortune off her guard and slipped through a contest without being beset with ill fortune.

But five hits were made off his delivery, and these were so well distributed that they counted for nothing. A batting rally that tickled the crowd helped the St. Louis team to 12 hits and five runs, the enemy not scoring.

The Browns put up one of their fast fielding games and went through without a single error, though Wallace was out of the game, ill with quinsy. McCormick held down the shortstop's position, with Friel at third, Padden, with an injured thumb, tended to second base.

Padden was particularly lively. Beside accepting all his fielding chances, he made three hits and stole two bases. Burkett also hammered out three safeties.

The work of the club at bat was a distinct improvement on the hitting of the team in the East, and McAleer felt much encouraged after the contest.

GOLF SUPREMACY SOUGHT BY MANY

Glen Echo Greens Are in Perfect Condition for Qualifying Contests.

President McGrew of the Glen Echo Golf Club and F. H. Semple teed off at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the opening round of the contest for the St. Louis amateur golf championship on Glen Echo's links.

Nearly eighty contestants are in line for the event, and the entire day will probably be occupied in playing off the qualifying round.

The greens at Glen Echo are in perfect condition.

The match of the morning which attracted greatest attention was that between Hart P. McKinney and Stewart Stickney. The pairs were sent away from the tee at four-minute intervals.

The tournament committee allowed ground rules to stand, otherwise the United States Golf Association rules governed. At noon the following pairs had not been sent to the tee:

Dr. Bransford Lewis—G. F. Powell, 1:30 p. m.

SHOOTERS CONTEST IN FINALS TODAY

St. Louis Marksmen Win National Team Shoot From Strong Field.

The shooting tournament of the Central Sharpshooters Union of America, which has been in progress at the Bobringville range for two days, will conclude this afternoon.

Sunday afternoon a convention of delegates will be held, and distribution of the prizes will take place. President August A. Busch of this city, will distribute the prizes.

Yesterday was a great one for the St. Louis contenders in the "shoot fest." The Mound City team, composed of L. Schweighoefer, Sam C. Dorman, Dr. E. H. Kessler, William Roessler, C. W. Bauer, Jr., and D. Schneiderwind, won the national rifle team.

Three teams were entered from St. Louis as first, second and third. The Firsts won by 4 points from the Wausau (Wis.) team, total 1249 to the enemy's 1245. The possible was 1300. The first Chicago team was third, score 1209.

Better scores were made in the other target events than were scored Thursday. The finals of the events will take place today. Mayor Harrison of Chicago failed to put in an appearance yesterday and is expected this afternoon.

Following are the results of yesterday's events:

RISING BREAST

And many other painful and serious ailments from which most mothers suffer, can be avoided by the use of "Mother's Friend." This great remedy is a God-send to women, carrying them through their most critical ordeal with safety and no pain.

No woman who uses "Mother's Friend" need fear the suffering and danger incident to birth; for it robs the ordeal of its horror and insures safety to life of mother and child, and leaves her in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery. The child is also healthy, strong and good natured. Our book "Motherhood," is worth its weight in gold to every woman, and will be sent free in plain envelope by addressing application to Bradfield Regulator Co. Atlanta, Ga.

NEWS FROM HOME.

It will be your fault if you suffer for lack of news from home this summer.

The POST-DISPATCH will be your faithful daily correspondent. It will follow you to Europe, South America, Canada, or any other point. Price by mail, 60 cents per month or $1.50 for three months. Postage to foreign countries, excepting Canada and Mexico, extra. Order through your carrier or note to this office will receive prompt attention.

The doctrine of "Can't" never won a battle or laid the foundations of success.

East St. Louis is still on the map and is going to occupy a larger place than ever.

Administration organs are trying hard to make it appear that Postmaster-General Payne is the chief promoter of postoffice reform. It is a difficult job.

Citizens who insist that not being on the railway map is a good thing for St. Louis are human tickers ticking off the arguments of the terminal combine.

NO INCREASE IN TAXATION.

Comptroller Player's statement that taxation will not be increased by the adoption of the Charter Amendment at Tuesday's election should weigh in favor of the measures.

"I can state most positively," says Mr. Player, "that there will be no increase of taxation from an increase of the city's bonded debt. The annual normal increase in the assessed valuation of personal property and real estate will unquestionably provide sufficient revenue to meet the interest on the bonds and for sinking fund purposes."

It should be remembered, however, that the amendment does not create any debt. If adopted it will only be a permission to the voters of St. Louis to vote a debt at an election to be ordered by the Assembly and Mayor. And this permission is further qualified by requiring, not a bare majority, but a two-thirds majority of the voters voting.

Mr. Player thinks it is not probable that more than two or three million dollars of bonds will be issued under such authority during the next eighteen months. All sound reasons conspire to favor the amendment. Vote aye.

If Arnold's return insured the return of the depositors' money he would be serenaded by an enthusiastic multitude.

THE SAENGERFEST.

The managers of the Saengerfest are to be congratulated on the pronounced success of the occasion.

The practical difficulties of the undertaking are hardly realized by the non-professional mind. To organize the forces of music on a scale so huge is a head-breaking task. Those responsible for its success might have found it heart-breaking as well. But the enthusiasm with which the event has been greeted is well calculated to engender a glow of pride and satisfaction among all who participated.

The Saengerfest performs a real public service to the higher interests of the community. The love of music is stimulated by bringing the best to the people. Real musical culture is advanced by producing the best in such wise that the popular heart is touched and quickened, fed with the masterpieces of musical thought.

On the practical side there is a well-founded hope that the receipts will meet expenditures.

The thirty-first annual Saengerfest will long be remembered with pleasure by the immense audiences. And every citizen of St. Louis will join in congratulating the managers, leaders and singers.

The Terminal Company professes willingness to readjust rates if the railroads entering St. Louis will permit. Too bad that Dr. Jekyll must always consult Mr. Hyde.

PSYCHOLOGY AND DIVORCE.

The Ruskin University panacea for the divorce habit may be very effective, but it might operate as a cure for the marriage habit.

"Women should learn to know their husbands," we are told. Let wives and sweethearts study psychology and thus become able to read the minds and dispositions of their husbands to be."

It is greatly to be feared that if a woman should become too well acquainted with her prospective husband's psychological characteristics she would change her mind. A man's character is a mixed pickle of good and bad and when a woman begins deliberately and in cold blood to study him, the virtues are not what she sees most plainly.

Nature has attended to this whole matter for us and it were wisdom to leave it in her care. The way of a man with a maid puzzled the wisest man and will continue to astonish the most studious. Nature regulates it, however, and, on the whole, she does it very well.

Better let your husband's psychology alone and look after your own. Women who assume their own inerrancy are no safer from disappointment than are men who fall into the same opinion of themselves.

The last of the squalid tenements at Five Points, New York, is being pulled down, to make way for another small park, which will be but a short distance from the newly created parks known as Paradise and Mulberry Bend. In a few years New York will be dotted with pretty breathing spots in its down-town districts. What is St. Louis doing about this most necessary improvement? When shall we begin to reverse the movement that has destroyed all the small parks in our crowded districts?

DANGER IN IMPURE MILK.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch will find some valuable information on the subject of milk in Friday's issue. Mothers, and milk consumers generally, would do well to read the article by Dr. Harry D. Nicks, professor of children's diseases in the College of Physicians, and follow its suggestions.

Prof. Nicks makes it plain that nothing can take the place of pure, properly kept milk, neither boiled, sterilized nor "doctored" in any manner, but in all regards except temperature, as given by nature. He shows that boiled and sterilized milk, are deficient in some of the properties of the natural product. And though it is better to rely upon milk thus modified, rather than use impure, sour or adulterated milk, it is much better to get the natural fluid, at the right temperature, and keep it under the right conditions.

Attention is called to the fact that the Health Department now inspects the milk offered for sale and is prepared to give information to consumers. It would be well for the reliability of dealers. It milk consumers in general to obtain this valuable information from the Health D[epartment], and to buy only milk that has this guarantee. And as the present high price of ice puts it beyond the reach of hundreds of families, the advice to buy milk in sealed bottles, from the reliable dealers, and keep it as cool as possible, is valuable.

The fact that deaths from summer complaint in New York have been reduced from 1500 to 500 in a few years, owing to the establishment of pure milk depots by Nathan Strauss, proves that this question is of vital importance. The mothers of St. Louis can do for themselves what Mr. Strauss has done for the mothers in New York, if they will inform themselves on this subject and act with intelligence.

The voice of the people of St. Louis—the merchants, manufacturers, labor representatives, real estate men, citizens who represent the general public interest—was heard on the subject of the terminal loop bill in the House of Delegates Friday. All of these representatives were unanimously opposed to the bill as passed by the council; all demanded the incorporation in the bill of amendments safeguarding the interests of St. Louis.

The petition of the shoe manufacturers and the wholesale merchants of Washington avenue practically agreed with that of the Manufacturers' Association in demanding a St. Louis bill of lading and a definite switching charge. A strong protest was made against the sacrifice of the river front and the demand for just compensation was vigorously pressed. These three main points supported by all citizens not controlled by the terminal combine are the points which the Post-Dispatch has insisted should be provided for in the bill.

The House of Delegates now has a clear view of the needs of St. Louis and what the merchants and manufacturers and citizens generally demand shall be incorporated in terminal franchise bills. They should be carefully framed in amendments, incorporated in the loop bill and the amended measure passed by the House and sent to the Council. While reasonable time should be given to all interests to submit views to the House there should not be useless delay in passing a proper bill and taking action upon it.

WHEN MONOPOLY IS NOT ILLEGAL.

In plain terms the decision of the State Supreme Court in the ouster case against the Continental Tobacco Co. is that consolidation by purchase, regardless of its effect upon competition, is not contrary to the anti-trust law of the state. The law merely forbids a corporation from going into a pool or trust to fix and control prices.

In the Northern Securities merger case the decision indicated the illegality of consolidation by purchase if the effect of the consolidation is to destroy competition. In the federal anti-trust law the destruction of competition seems to be the test of illegality.

In the state of Missouri, under this decision, a complete monopoly may be obtained by consolidation through purchase, except in the case of competing and parallel railroads, which cannot be owned or operated by the same corporation.

But monopoly by the purchase and consolidation of all competing plants in one line may be as great an evil as a pool or trust to control prices. It is evident that the problem of protecting the public from monopoly has not been solved in Missouri.

"If you don't grant this franchise the World's Fair will be a failure." That is the capital argument for the terminal grab. The World's Fair will be remembered with regret if it is saddled with every monopoly gouge. Must the great spectacle be paid for by the surrender of everything that will make the city a desirable place to live in after the Fair is past and gone?

A garbage reduction plant owned by the municipality would be a good thing. But the city should likewise collect the garbage. Arrangements to this end should be perfected so that when the present contract expires the service can be assumed as a municipal duty.

The aim of many senators and representatives at Jefferson City seems to have been to sell legislation and votes at wholesale and retail. The notion that they had been elected to serve the public interest exclusively seems never to have entered their heads.

Another Senator refuses to answer the grandjury's questions on the ground that it would incriminate him to do so. Is the Missouri Senate a lawmaking body or a criminal conspiracy?

France has reduced the term of compulsory military service by one year. This is a practical concession to the peace movement worth reams of sentimental resolutions.

Another report has "spread like wildfire." Reports have been doing that ever since the days of the Revolutionary war, when the news that brave American men had been fired upon by British soldiers at Lexington set the fashion. By the way, what is this wildfire?

BABY BLUE.

Baby pink and baby blue,
Oh, how slyly peeping through,
Don't you know I'm onto you?

Don't you think I know the art,
Serpent-wise in every part,
Centered in your owner's heart?

Don't you know she knows the grace
Of that bit of snowy lace
In that tantalizing place?

Don't you know I know she knows
That that little ribbon glows
Like a crimson bud on snows?

Don't you know I know that she Realizes perfectly
What a maiden's power can be?

Don't you know, O baby blue,
Baby pink, both peeping through,
That she banks a heap on you?

Don't you know she wouldn't wear
That delightful banner there,
Save for charms beyond compare?

Don't you know that she is wise,
Though she feigns demure surprise
With those calm and modest eyes?

Doesn't she know, the same as you,
That your presence, baby blue,
Is a plain invite to woo?

Lovely woman! Any device
Whatsoever that cuts ice
She makes use of to entice.

You dispute the statement? What!
Well you know that saint or sot
Never would love her, did she not!

Hence it is, O baby blue,
Lacy meshes peeping through,
That she banks so much on you.

Worry.

Don't worry. That is what you always tell the other fellow.

"Don't worry," you say.

How easy it is to make a remark like that! It de only two words, a part of another and an apostrophe, and you never place any accent on the apostrophe.

The peculiar thing about this matter is that he never takes your advice, and you know he won't when you give it, because you know in your own heart that this advice is worthless.

It is only a mistaken sense of kindness that causes you to make such a suggestion. You know good and well that if you were in the other fellow's fix you would be worrying yourself half to death, but you keep trying to jolly him along with the hope of clearing away a few wrinkles and suppressing a few sighs.

But you know that he will worry just the same.

There never was a reliable "Don't Worry Club." The man never lived that did not worry.

A Belated Flood Joke.

"Why was last Monday like the condition of the railroads centering in St. Louis during the flood?"

"There was a wash out on every line."

Once again have burglars "overlooked several valuable articles," after having stolen a pocketbook containing seventy-five or thirty cents. Usually they overlook a roll of bills or a bunch of jewelry. One of the mysteries of life is why our burglars, who are so industrious, are at the same time so careless.

Illinois Free Methodists propose to bar the church doors to all divorced persons. Let's see—how is this? If they are free, they cannot be Methodists, and if they are Methodists, they cannot be free. Well, anyway, it is something like that.

U. S. Grant, Jr., hopes that the Republicans will nominate him for the vice-presidency next year, but so far he has not demanded the unconditional surrender of the party to his wishes.

Illinois' lieutenant-governor was robbed in Indianapolis, but that was not a circumstance to what happened to an l. t. that any Missourian could name.

THE EARTH'S "HOT BOX."

From the New York Tribune.

A negro preacher down South has discovered the real cause of the recent volcanic disasters. He says: "De earf, my friends, resolves on axels, as we all know. Somefin' is needed to keep the axels greased; so when de earf was made petrolyum was put inside for dat purpose. De Standard Oil comp'ny comes along an' strax dat petrolyum by borin' holes in de earf. De earf stix on its axels an' won't go round no more; den dere is a hot box, just as ef de earf wuz a big railway train and den, my frin's, der is trouble."

PENNSYLVANIA'S GREEK TEMPLE

From the Springfield Republican.

Pennsylvania, rich in historic associations and buildings, which mean so much in the history of the United States, does not propose to turn in that direction when preparing to erect a state building at the St. Louis World's Fair. It is to have "a Greek temple, highly ornamented and monumental in character," surrounded by a peristyle, with a courtyard ornamented with statuary and fountains. In the rotunda of this structure—most incongruous housing—is to be placed the Liberty bell, which has been made a veritable tramp by those who control it, and some day will very likely meet an inglorious fate in a railroad smash-up. On its St. Louis building Pennsylvania is to expend $100,000, including the furnishing. Perhaps it is just as well that Pennsylvania is not to duplicate Independence Hall, for example, in these days of Quay and the astonishing Pennypacker and the libel law that he dares not attempt to enforce.

A TRIP TO EUROPE FOR $2000 AND THE SAME JAUNT FOR $50

The Two Extremes of Price for Which Vacationists May Cross the Atlantic.

IN "Brewster's Millions," a clever story by Richard Greaves, published by Herbert S. Stone & Co., the principal character gives his friend $15,000 to secure passage for a party of friends rrom Southampton to New York. The friend remonstrates with him, saying $15,000 is too much. As there are twenty-five in the party Brewster argues that the overflow of money can be "blown in" showing the people a good time.

The acme of extravagance, as Brewster's prodigality impresses his friends, would not be regarded as furnishing too much funds for such a trip if the party were to take passage on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. In fact the price for twenty-five first-class passengers taking the highest-priced accommodations for the trip would make $15,000 entirely inadequate.

The highest-priced passage from New York to Bremen or return is in the cabins de luxe of the Kaiser Wilhelm II., and is $2000.

The cheapest rate which may be secured to Europe first-class is $50. This is the summer rate from May 1 to October 1 to Europe and from August 1 to October 1 returning. Just what constitutes this $2000 passage, which is the highest priced listed by any of the steamship companies, is the amount of room taken and the location. In other respects the service is the same as the other first-class passengers. The imperial suites are the $2000 accommodations and include suite of parlor, bedroom, bath, private dining-room and maid's quarters in different locations. The rate includes two adults and a maid.

The $50 passage includes a stateroom which two persons may occupy. The private service, of course, is not given.

If the party in "Brewster's Millions," who were astounded by $15,000 being offered to defray the expenses for twenty-five persons, had taken the highest-priced accommodations on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. it would have cost them $25,000, allowing two persons to each apartment.

The prodigality of Brewster, which was taken as an exorbitant standard, has been surpassed by our luxury-loving travelers of today.

While the modest traveler can get a $50 rate on the smaller lines, the man who wishes to spend his money can expend $2000 on a passage alone.

FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS

WHIRLIGIG.

Cut this whirligig out very carefully and paste it on a square bit of thin cardboard (a postal card would do). Let it dry, and then cut the cardboard out round the whirligig, and with a tiny pin fasten it through the center to a bit of stick for a handle. This should be about the thickness of a match and three times as long. Now take hold of it by the handle and slowly turn it from left to right, and you will see that it appears to be whizzing round and round at a tremendous rate.

If you paint the white circles very carefully a bright red or a bright blue, the effect will be still better; only you must not paint it until after you have pasted it on the card and it is quite dry.

SCIENCE COMPLICATING ITS TERMS.

"Only a couple of weeks ago," remarked the scientist, "Manchester, England, celebrated, a little prematurely, the centenary of John Dalton's atomic theory. When, on September 6, 1803, Dalton drew up in his notebook his first table of 'ultimate atoms' of hydrogen he was content with such comparatively simple words as 'azot.' But we've progressed in more ways than one since that day, and right here's a recent volume of the 'Journal of the Chemical Society' that proves it. The pages are plentifully besprinkled with some marvelously made words, but one will serve. It's Ethylbromoketohydroxydihydropentanthrenedicarboxylate.' How do you like it? Mark Twain once said of certain German polysyllable achievements that they were 'not words, but alphabetic processions.' In the same way, such scientific 'names' aren't names at all, but descriptive sentences with the verbs left out."—Philadelphia Press.

MICROPHONIC STICK.

Take a long stick and at one end place a real watch and at the other a toy watch. If you set your ear against the latter it will appear to be going; you can distinctly hear the tick-tack, a fact which will produce the illusion that it is a real watch. The sound of the ticking has been transmitted through the wood because of the conductibility of the wood.

In default of a toy watch you can simply place your ear at the bare end of the stick and you can hear the ticking of the watch at the other end just as if it were beside your ear. With this experiment you can perform a little trick; conceal the real watch under a cloth and place the toy watch in full view at the other end of the stick. To those uninitiated the tricking to be heard will appear marvelous.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Merchants' Exchange Sentiment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I want to commend most heartily the two communications from Exchange members in Thursday's issue on the Terminal grab. It is an outrage for our directory to assume to speak for this body without ascertaining by a vote what its sentiment is. There is an intense feeling of indignation that they should thus attempt to use their official positions to influence legislation that more than three-fourths of our members are bitterly and determinedly opposed to. Really, it is an outrage on our rights as members. Their duties are clearly defined, and they can keep themselves quite busy if they just attend to them. Individually even I happen to know they don't express the sentiment of a majority of the directory; only a working majority being present at this meeting.

This Terminal grab must be defeated now and a new era begun in St. Louis.

Costly Funeral for a Dog.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There was quite a lengthy article in a morning paper about the death of "Rags" and the respect shown his remains by his associates in life. It makes my heart swell with pride when I read of such devotion to departed loved ones. It does me good to know that there are people here in St. Louis who don't count the expense when it comes to giving such distinguished characters as "Rags" (for he was a genuine Russian terrier) a big funeral. Just think, $45 for a casket to bury him in, while hundreds of poor little children are carried to the potter's field in a plain wooden box because there is no one able to give them a better place. It does seem to me that it would be more Christian like to use our money and our flowers to give some poor little child a decent funeral than spend it to bury a dog.

"My Old Kentucky Home."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

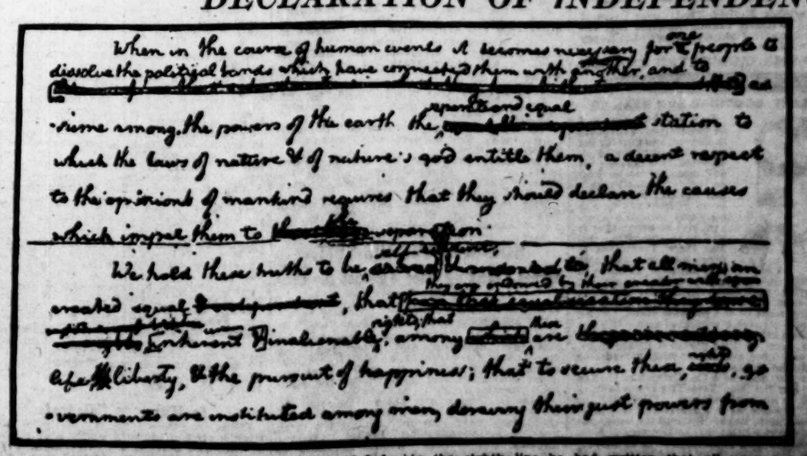

As one of the many Kentuckians who attended the Saengerfest Thursday evening, I wish to express my sympathy for that grand organization for the mistake made in the tenth number. I have heard "My Old Kentucky Home" sung and played thousands of times by individuals and companies, but never such a weird and wild rendition as was given last night. No wonder that of all the numbers on the program so warmly and justly applauded only this one was received in the coldest silence. Not only the tune, which is charming from its very simplicity, but the words were strange.

I am not a musician in the artistic meaning of the term, nor even a would-be critic, but I cannot help wondering—and the question has certainly occurred to many like myself—why it is those who are, or believe themselves to be musicians, would desecrate these old songs like "Home, Sweet Home," "The Last Rose of Summer" and others I could mention, which are dear to the hearts of most of us, not only by reason of associations, but by their simple beauty, by cutting out notes, throwing in minors and making other changes which invariably play havoc.

I sincerely hope the next time this beautiful song is essayed that the tune as every one knows it and the words, which nearly all are familiar with, will be adhered to, and there will then be no question of a cordial reception.

A KENTUCKIAN.

ORIGINAL ROUGH DRAFT OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

Here's the original rough draft of the Declaration of Independence, just as Thomas Jefferson first scribbled it. Here are the scratches and erasures, where his correcting pen altered words that had at first seemed to him so eloquent. For instance, in the eighth line he had written that all men are created "equal and independent." This he cut down to the famous phrase "All men are created equal." Readers with keen eyes can discern other changes [illegible] more radical.

FUN AND INTERESTING READING MATTER FOR THE HOME CIRCLE

THE OLD JOKES' HOME

By O. B. Joyful.

BIG RIOT IN ENGLAND!

People Arise in Their Might and Compel King Edward to Cable at Once for Twenty Tons of Cork-O!

The first get-lunch-in-a-hurry counter ever seen in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, India and the islands of the sea was opened a few days ago in London.

Notwithstanding a heavy downpour of rain, there was such a rush for the pie counter, the griddle cakes and the "plates of buck" that the police had to be called in to preserve order. This rush continued throughout the day.

King Edward VII, wise old guy that he usually is, was unable to prevent the disorderly scenes that followed, and on the same day cabled over for 20 tons of Cork-O, the marvelous breakfast food, made of pure desiccated cork from Cork, Ireland, to be shipped immediately, to relieve the wishes of the populace, who were clamoring for it in the streets and refused to be satisfied with any substitute whatsoever.

"There is nothing on earth 'just as good' as Cork-O," exclaimed the excited people, "for we have read of its virtues and merits from the pen of that truthful and faithful chronicler, O. B. Joyful, and we know what to expect!"

All day long the frenzied people went about the streets crying aloud:

Cork-O or bust!
Have it we must!
We'll lynch the Duke of York-O
And kill a passle
In Windsor Castle,
Unless you give us Cork-O!

So, under the circumstances, what could the poor king do? He had read in the 8 o'clock edition of the Post-Dispatch, top of column, next to pure reading matter, what happened to King Alexander of Servia, and he could see that his own people, sick and tired of inferior English breakfast foods, made from abandoned side saddles, horse-hair sofas, excelsior and worn-out straw matting, were wild for a taste of Cork-O, the marvelous breakfast food, manufactured in St. Louis, U. S. A., 1904, World's Fair, from pure desiccated cork from Cork, Ireland, that they would be satisfied with nothing less, and that a revolution would undoubtedly take place unless this popular want were supplied.

Hence the hurried order by cable and the almost tearful language of the message beseeching Prof. Hesa Corker of the Old Jokes' Home, inventor of Cork-O, the marvelous, etc., to ship it by first steamer. This was done, and the hunger and anxiety of the English people, who have always been given credit for knowing a good thing, will soon be satisfied.

The following came today:

Mr. O. B. Joyful.

Dear Sir: I see from your report that you have given Officer Jerry Sullivan "his papers." I am sorry, but his crime was awful, for I caught a glimpse of "The Good Old Summer Time" at the Suburban Garden last evening. It was so stale. Then "Bill Bailey" came "Just as the Sun Went Down." Horrors! I met strolling in "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon." Jerry has been good at catching these, so I hope the new Officer McCormick will do his duty. Yours truly,

I. M. DAFFY.

We regret exceedingly to state that there is grave doubt of the genuineness of the credentials of Officer Jack McCormick, who was selected by the manager of the Old Jokes' Home as the successor of Officer Jerry Sullivan, driver of the busy blue joke ambulance.

This matter has not yet been straightened out, so that our promised report cannot be made today, but every patron and friend of the O. J. H. shall be given the full details of what promises to be a great scandal—the first of its kind—in the history of this noble institution.

The following tip from Mr. John E. Wise, which was received this morning, will be thoroughly investigated:

Mr. O. B. Joyful, Old Jokes' Home.

Dear Sir—Having watched with pleasure and interest the great good you are accomplishing in the way of recuperating old and worn-out gags, and instituting a detention ward for overworked songs, I have taken it upon myself to do a little detective work in the interests of your institution. My experience as a detective covers a period of ten years, during which time I was looking for a job.

During the past week I have been secretly aiding you in the recapture of the debilitated "In the Good Old Summer Time," and can now inform you that the above-mentioned song has several children who cavort and gambol during the daytime at an amusement parlor on Olive street, where they can be captured with ease. I have authentic proof that their old reprobate father has departed for Philadelphia, where the song is just now coming into popular use.

If you desire any further work of me along these lines, let me know. Yours truly,

JOHN E. WISE.

MEANT IT SO NICELY, TOO.

TIMING IT.

Micky: Say, Jimmy, how long is de circus performance.

Jimmy: Oh, about two bags of peanuts.

THE TRAIL OF GENIUS.

From the Philadelphia Record.

"Why are all those boys following that little lad?" asked the stranger.

"He's going to let them see the baseball game," said Mickey.

"Gracious! You don't mean to say he has ticket for all?"

"No; but he has a good augur; an' de fence ain't so thick."

THE NEWEST BOOKS

LAST OF CAPTAIN KETTLE?

Admirers of Capt. Kettle, that fiery little adventurer created by Cullife Hyne, will enjoy "More Adventures of Capt. Kettle, K. C. B.," but will regret that the author has in this volume retired his hero to private life. Good heroes should be neither retired nor killed off. Sherlock Holmes had to be resuscitated. And H. G. Wells should by all means revive Graham and let him continue the work begun in that wonderful romance, "When the Sleeper Awakes." As for Capt. Kettle, it seems impossible to believe that he could ever settle down and become a staid country magnate. In the volume before us he is shown doing strenuous feats in his usual snappy, overbearing way. He is the very embodiment of the modern spirit of intense individualism. As such he is an inspiration to young men, but they will do well not to follow his lead in his methods of mastering men, which are apt to lead to bloody murder. It is said that Cullife Hyne travels on an average 10,000 miles a year to acquire material and local color for his novels. This being so it should not be impossible for him to start Capt. Kettle on another round of adventure, even in his old age and minus one leg.

The Federal Book Co.: New York.

The fortieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg occurs this July, and in the July issue of Scribner's Magazine Gen. John B. Gordon, one of the most distinguished survivors of the conflict on the Confederate side, will describe with rare dramatic ability the great fight, giving his deliberate conclusions as to the causes of Lee's defeat. Gen. Gordon says that all these years have not shaken his belief that if Gen. Lee's orders had all been carried out with alacrity the victory would have been his.

AFTER DEATH, WHO ARE WE?

That we do retain our own personality after death is the conclusion of a most interesting article in Harper's Magazine for July, contributed by Alexander F. Chamberlain, Ph. D., of Clark University. "Personality is the highest product thus far of the evolutionary process," writes Prof. Chamberlain, leaving the reader to infer that it will not therefore be wasted in the great universal design. In this article he also touches upon the former belief in the soullessness of woman, in which connection his remarks are pointed and not very complimentary to the masculine sex.

FOR GARDEN LOVERS.

The vogue of Mrs. Ely's "A Woman's Hardy Garden," seems only to be increased by the coming into the field of rival volumes. Of the flood of garden books that followed "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" most were of English origin; and the American gardeners who followed them came to grief because an English winter and a New England winter are not the same, and because English soil is not American clay and dirt, and because American gardens cannot be made with the help of English books. Mrs. Ely's book was the first American volume to contain just the practical instructions which the amateur gardener seeks, and it has been in greater demand than almost any volume of fiction published this year, with the exception of perhaps half a dozen. Mrs. Ely's middle name, by the way, is Rutherfurd, and not Rutherford, as many newspaper writers have erroneously spelled it. The name comes to her from a very old Scotch family with a history running back nearly a thousand years.

Goldwin Smith, the dean of living historical writers, contributes to the June number of the Atlantic Monthly an important paper on "The Cult of Napoleon." After surveying the recent flood of Napoleonic literature, and the growing disposition of many to consider that "Man of Fate" as perhaps the greatest genius of the world, Mr. Smith assumes the role of devil's advocate, and makes a vigorous arraignment of Napoleon's ability, as well as of his morality. Mr. Smith's examination of what he calls Napoleon's insanities affords much suggestive reading. As he says: "Napoleon's sanguine temperament, sustained by his marvelous physique, led him to dare immense risks. So long as the resistance was senile and spiritless the results of his adventures were immense and splendid; an Austerlitz or a Jena. But when the spirit of nations had been roused by insufferable oppression and insult, the results were no longer the same."

SARAH GRAND IN HER DOMESTIC LIFE.

Madame Sarah Grand is a very young-looking step-mother. Her stepson, Mr. Haldane MacFall, has a baby daughter whose own mother is dead; and as they live together at Madam Grand's beautiful English country home near Sevenoaks, it follows that the author of "Babs, the Impossible," is devoted to the motherless step-grandchild. Indeed, Madam Grand, despite her continual criticism of men and her literary challenges to them, is known by her intimates to be devoted to feminine pursuits. Her domestic surroundings are very charming, and to her friends she is most hospitably inclined.

A PRIZE WINNER.

Marian Warner Wildman, whose "Not His the Silence" will be one of the verse features of the July Century, won the Century's 1898 prize of $250 for the best metrical writing submitted that year by any college graduate of 1897. Miss Wildman is an alumna of Western Reserve University, and her present residence is Norwalk, O.

LOG OF A COWBOY.

Interesting comment on "The Log of a Cowboy," by Andy Adams, published last month by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., comes from a westerner who is now a prominent member of the Massachusetts bar. He says: "The book deals with a period of history with which I was intimately associated, having spent twenty years of my life on the plains amidst the scenes and circumstances so faithfully described by the author. Most of the places mentioned by him I know well, and many of them I visited during the year mentioned by him. The book is well written, has the true flavor, and on the whole is the best description of that portion of the West I have seen. It is the product of a 'thoroughbred' and carries me back to scenes and circumstances I am glad to have thus recalled." Mr. E. Hough, author of "The Story of the Cowboy" says "Andy Adams is the real thing, and the first time the real thing has appeared in print." The book was in its fourth edition on publication.

"A Daughter of the Pit," by Margaret Doyle Jackson, is published in England by Cassell & Co. The story is going around among Mrs. Jackson's friends that when she had finished this novel and was at work on its revision, she became so discouraged that she very nearly tore up the whole manuscript, and at last in disgust sold it to her husband for 50 cents cash. After a few days, however, she recovered from her depression and was anxious to get the story back at any price. Her husband was very considerate and returned the manuscript at an advance of only a quarter of a dollar—the same being for salvage charges, as he expressed it. After this, Mrs. Jackson soon had the story ready for the publishers.

SIMEON FORD, AUTHOR.

Simeon Ford, whose book, "A Few Remarks," is shortly forthcoming from the press of Doubleday, Page & Co., holds the unusual distinction of having his book serialized in part in two periodicals. Everything points to the expediency of Mr. Ford's giving up his peaceful occupation of a very successful hotelkeeper in New York City and to his becoming a theatrical star (for the theater men are after him) or literary light. Mr. Ford, however, is a modest man. He once studied law and was too diffident to speak in court, and the chances now are that his fame for the immediate future, aside from his after-dinner humor, will rest upon "A Few Remarks."

ONWARD AND UPWARD.

Mrs. Pusher: Oh, John, I do wish some of our swell country acquaintances would invite us to lunch.

Mr. Pusher: Keep cool; I'll manage it. Just lemme doctor this machinery a little first.

Mrs. Whooper-Whooper: What! Broken down just at our door! Then you really must come in to lunch! So pleased, I'm shuah!

A SAFE RULE.

From the Chicago News.

It is not a bad plan to do all that you can
In your chosen particular line,
And if progress is slow and there's little to show
For your work, not to whimper and whine.
It is better to creep than fall short in the leap,
You will come out all right if you stay;
You are bound to succeed if this warning you heed—
Keep pegging away.

Perhaps once in a while you will see a man able
Up a fortune in no time—that's true;
You'll observe that he's struck in a rich streak of luck
And you'll think that might happen to you.
But if you would advance you must not trust to chance;
You will find as a rule it won't pay;
Just a slow, steady pace is the best in life's race—
Keep pegging away.

If you're willing to climb just a step at a time
You are more apt to get to the top.
There is many a stroke to the fall of an oak,
And the stone is worn through drop by drop,
It's a proverb that haste is conducive to waste,
And that Rome was not built in a day.
If you don't go too fast you will get there at last.
Keep pegging away.

YOUR BODY AS A STORAGE BATTERY.

It may strike you as rather strange to be told that at times your body is nothing less than a dynamo, fully charged with electricity. Nevertheless, according to Sir James Grant, an eminent English physician, as a result of sudden drafts and the contractions of ordinary colds the human body becomes charged with electricity to a surprising degree.

The electricity generated under such circumstances is not to be despised. It is of just as good a quality as that derived from the regular electric battery, although, of course, its quality is too insignificant to be utilized for any practical purpose.

The main effect upon the victim is to make his muscles hard and tense, a fact which often leads him to imagine that he is suffering from some kind of muscular rheumatism. Indeed, physicians, after a superficial examination, sometimes diagnose the case in the same way. The trouble, however, is simply that the muscles have become charged with electricity to an unusual degree.

No less strange than the ailment itself is the remedy adopted by Sir James Grant some years ago, and now followed by many other physicians. Sir James has been in the habit of treating these supposed cases of muscular rheumatism by inserting fine steel needles into the affected parts, the number of needles depending upon the extent of the ailment. The needles, as a general rule, are inserted in the places where the pain is most intense, and are left there for one or two minutes. The effect is magical. At the expiration of the proper time, the patient finds that his muscles which, before, were as hard and as tense as though he had "caught a cramp," are quite flexible and he can use them without pain.

The reason of this cure is simple. As soon as the needles are inserted, the electrical through the body of the operator, although te body of te operator, although without without causing hi many discomfort.

AN ULTIMATUM.

From the Chicago News.

Father (trying to read): What's that terrible racket in the hall?

Mother: One of the children just fell down the stairs.

Father: Well, you tell the children if they can't fall downstairs quietly they'll have to stop it.

BLACKBOARD.

If you will apply black silhouette paper to the wall or any plain surface you will have an excellent blackboard for common chalk. Wet the wall instead of the paper and apply just a little at a time, rubbing out the wrinkles with a cloth. Tack a narrow strip of wood across the lower edge to hold crayons and catch the dust.

GREAT SAVABLE'S ODDS NOW RECEDING; PUBLIC AT SEA FOR BIG DERBY CHOICE

Claude, Thrice a Derby Winner, and Judge Himes, Are Rising in Favor for Chicago's Great Race Today.

HEAVY TRACK WOULD HURT SAVABLE

Society and the Thoroughbreds Will Divide Honors at Washington Park — 75,000 Attendance Expected.

FACTS ABOUT THE BIG RACE.

Starters—Twenty-three.
Gross value of stakes—$33,000.
Bookmakers' favorite—Savable.
Popular choices — Claude and Judge Himes.
Distance—One and one-half miles.
Scene of race—Washington Park.
Condition of track—Probably a trifle slow.
Expected attendance—75,000.
Best time for the Derby—2:33 3-5, Robert Waddell.
Colts entered—Twenty-two.
Fillies—One, Flocarline.

CHICAGO, June 20.—This is the greatest day in the year in the social life of Chicago. From the Auditorium south to Washington Park, Michigan avenue and Grand boulevard will be one long stretch of the most magnificent equipages in the West.

Femininity will be in its glory. The toilets seen at Washington Park Derby day are the best products of the milliners' and modistes' art than can be seen on this continent.

Fashion will jointly hold sway with the thoroughbred.

By general consent Derby day in Chicago is considered a holiday. Ministers of the gospel, judges on the bench, editors from their sanctum, the millionaire and the pauper all go to witness this, the greatest sporting event in the whole United States.

The American Derby started on a modest scale 19 years ago, but is today recognized as the leading turf event of the western world. From the standpoint of value it is not nearly as rich as the Futurity, but in general interest and enthusiasm it completely eclipses that event.

The gross value of this year's American Derby will be a little over thirty thousand dollars. In the Columbia Exposition year it was worth $50,000. This year's race is one of the most open in the history of the event.

It is robbed of much of its interest from the fact that the champion 3-year-old of the East, Irish Lad, will not be a starter. In fact, the Eastern jockey clubs will not be represented in the event at all.

Savable—last year's Futurity winner—is a strong favorite, and has been ever since the future books were opened. His race in the Derby trial Wednesday last, however, would plainly indicate that he is averse to a route, and is expected to be beaten today.

If the track should be heavy—and the indications point that way—then he would have no chance whatever, as he is unable to extend himself in such going. Claude has gained a host of friends by his brilliant victory in the St. Louis Derby, but he will meet a different class today.

St. Louis will be nobly represented in the American Derby by Linguist, the property of Fred Cook, and Monsieur Beaucaire, owned by W. W. Darden & Co., in which Mr. G. L. Crawford is interested. The victory of either of these thoroughbreds would be very popular here.

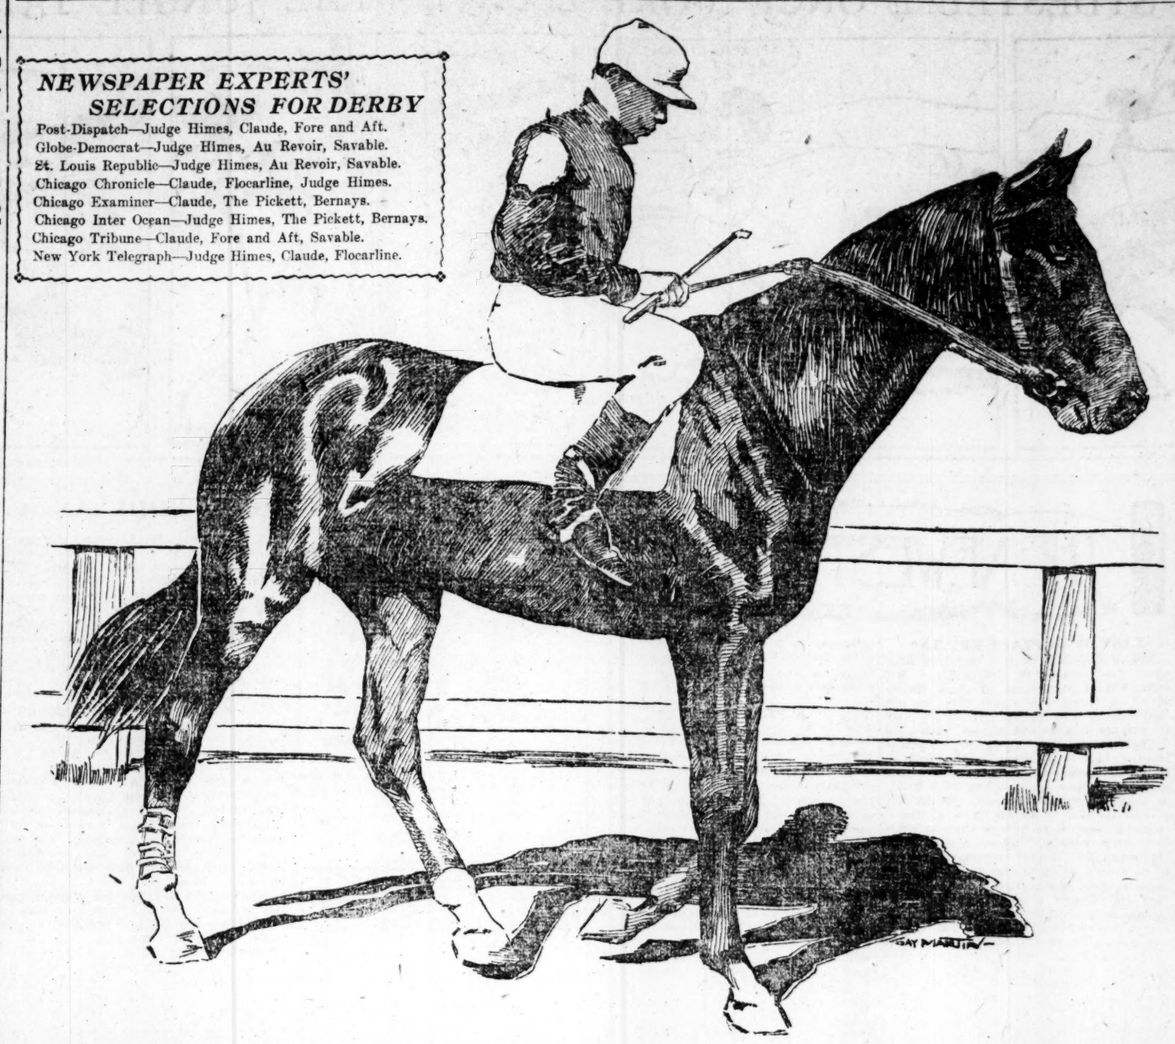

Judge Himes is the horse fancied to win this great race.

His notable victory in the Hawthorne Handicap, when he defeated a fine lot of all-age horses, entitles him to be selected to win the American Derby. Mud is his forte, and he is also a good weight carrier.

This year's field is the largest that ever met in the event. It is also the best, as it includes the pick of the Western 3-year-olds.

Talk of Changed Luck for Ill Omened Numeral Has Caught American Derby Bettors.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The important question here today is not who will ride this horse or that, or which candidate for the American Derby is favorite in the betting, or what the workout of any especial entry may have been.

It is: What jockey will carry No. 13?

This important fact leaked out with the arrival from the East of Jim Madden, a reported relative of the great trainer.

Madden has a scheme for beating the Derby which he brought along with him from New York. He imported it from Paris. Its basis is superstition.

Madden, when asked about the subject, said:

"This is straight. You people out here say 13 is an unlucky number. You're all wrong.

"The other day I read an account of an airship fleet visiting a French racetrack. The first ship to descend to the track was No. 13, and some wise Frenchman immediately took the cue and played No. 13 in the next race. There was but one other race on the card with as many as 13 entries, and No. 13 won that also.

"That isn't all. The day of the Suburban handicap I saw Africander was up with No. 13 on the back of his rider. I figured out that the old luck attached to the number must be changing, so I went and got me down a bet on Africander at 16 to 1. Nobody was betting on the animal, but I stuck it out. Maybe I didn't win!

"Will I back No. 13 today? Well, watch me," and Madden exposed a roll of yellow colored paper big enough to choke the winner of the Derby.

SKELETONS FOUND IN FLOOD.

East St Louis Boys Discover Grewsome Box in Backwater.

Two skeletons were found floating in the water at the rear of the Tudor iron works in East St. Louis by John Ewald and Eddie Lyons, each aged 16. The skeletons were in a box, and were so placed that the skulls protruded.

The police believe that the skeletons were placed in the box at some point up the river, and that the box was washed down by the flood.

JUNIORS TO RUN AT SIX FURLONGS

Championship Race for Two-Year-Olds Worth $1500 to the Winner.

BY R. D. WALSH.

FAIR GROUNDS RACE TRACK, June 20.—The running of the American Derby will be called from the press box at the Fair Grounds this afternoon, and the stentorian tones of the "only" Jones will tell the result at almost the same time it will be known in Chicago.

One of the most important stake events of the local racing season will be run at the Fair Grounds this afternoon. The junior championship is an event for 2-year-olds at six furlongs, and this will be its ninth annual recurrence.

It was inaugurated in 1895, when the distance was five and one-half furlongs. It was changed to five furlongs in 1898 and 1899, and in 1900 it was again changed, this time to six furlongs, at which it remains. Two years ago the race was won by Wyeth, winner of the American Derby last year.

The race will be worth about $1500 to the winner. Of the five horses carded to start T. P. Hayes owns two, Fenian and Mafalda, and in these he certainly holds a strong hand. Fenian has never started in a race, but rumor has it that he is one of the best juveniles in the Hayes stable.

If this is so, there is little doubt about his ability to win this stake, as Mr. Hayes has some very fine youngsters in training.

I cannot select a horse to win a race of this kind on mere rumor, however, but must go according to form. From that standpoint Imboden should win the race.

He beat the fast J. W. O'Neill one day at five and one-half furlongs, although he was practically left at the post. In that race he showed the utmost gameness and stamina. He is a small horse, and will have big weight up, but his opponents are also heavily weighted and he has already shown that he is indifferent to weight.

Hayes Entry a Probable Favorite

The Hayes entry should not be worse than second, and will probably be favorite. Check Morgan is a fair sort of filly, and will probably run as good as third.

Next in interest to the stake race will come the fifth, which is a handicap at a mile and an eighth for 3-year-olds and upward.

This is a very open race. Every horse in it has a good chance, and a good price will be obtained against the winner. It is a Maginn puzzle. Taby Tosa will probably be favorite on his well-known ability as a stretch runner, but if the track is fast Orris, with only 90 pounds in the saddle, will be hard to beat.

On Found's last race, Taby Tosa and Prince Richard hold her perfectly safe. Mynheer's last race at seven furlongs—a distance which does not suit him—was so good that he must be given strong consideration here. He will like the distance as well if not better than any of his opponents and with only 90 pounds up is sure to be a contender. It will be hard to get a good boy to ride him at this weight. Landola ran second once in Kentucky to an ordinary horse, but the performance was not impressive, and I can give her no chance. On his recent form it is impossible to select Edgardo to win. The trainer of the Hughes horses does not appear to be very successful in his methods.

The sixth race will be at the Derby distance of a mile and a half. I see no good reason why The Wizard should not repeat his recent victories and win this race handily. He has such phenomenal speed that he will make his opponents dizzy in the first mile, and then come on and lope home by himself.

Pathos Favored by Weights

Pathos should just as easily be second, and on account of his light weight will be backed strongly. He is a better bet for a place than The Wizard to win. Tammany Chief will probably run third. The other three horses in the race have never done anything in the turf world to make them dangerous here.

After yesterday's victory of Orleans at a mile and fifteen, Miss's race early in the week. It is never safe to predict how far a horse can go. Aules is credited with being a sprinter, but I think he will surprise people in the last race. Kisme and Virgie d'Or should fight it out with him in the last sixteenth.

The first three races could easily be eliminated from the program without in any way injuring it. The first and third races have 15 horses entered in each, and the second has 10, of the "canine" variety. Lady Idris is a quitter, but she should have sufficient speed to annex the first race.

The lot opposed to her one about as bad as could be found in any section of the country, not expecting the merry-go-round at Newport. Aranasa and Oakling should be the contenders. If Handspinner is in fair condition he should win the second race from Pettijohn. With the difference in weight, Bourke Cochran should not be worse than third.

Gibraltar is the class of the third race. He is much better than the lot opposed to him here. He has frequently reeled off six furlongs in California in 1:14. Goudy and Mollie T. will probably divide second and third money between them.

SPORT NOTES

A double-header baseball game is scheduled for Kulage Park Sunday afternoon. The first contest will be at 1:30 between the Columbias and the Clarks. The second will be between the White Seals and the Quick Meals.

Trolley League's Sunday schedule is as follows: Kerns vs Eisenstadts at Alton, St. Charles vs Belleville at Belleville. The East St. Louis-Alton game is called off on account of the flood.

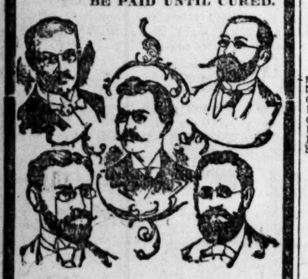

When Galba fell in a race at Chicago, Johnnie Reiff, who was riding, sustained a fracture of the clavicle. He will be out of the saddle for some time.

The horse Aimless and his owner, H. H. Kingsbury, were ruled off at Detroit as a result of the victory of "Sarah Black" at that course recently. "Sarah Black," according to the track authorities, was none other than the horse Aimless, and won under false colors.

Charlie Burns, the prize fighter, shot himself at Chicago Friday night after a quarrel with Mrs. Nat C. Bates, wife of the theatrical man.

NEWS IN NEARBY CITIES

SAYS ASSAILANT WAS NOT FATHER

Dying Girl Said Stranger Struck Blow Which Caused Death of Her Mother.

August Bailey, who was held in jail in Alton on suspicion of having killed his wife and seriously injured his son and daughter Thursday night, has been released.

The affair is still something of a mystery, but Elizabeth Bailey, the daughter, aged 14, recovered consciousness Sautrday morning and gave a partial account of the assault and exonerated her father, who had already established a farily good alibi.

Deputy Coroner Streeper and Sheriff Frank Crow of Madison County took the ante-mortem statement of Elizabeth Bailey Saturday, when it was announced by the physicians that she could live but a few hours. She said:

"Mamma had George on her lap and he was asleep. I was driving the horse when a man climbed on the back of the wagon and called mamma a name. It was not papa.

"Then he struck me, and I remember nothing else."

George, the little boy, recovered consciousness and was asked what happened. All he can tell of it is:

"I don't know what happened, except that I fell out of a little red wagon and was hurt."

August Bailey, husband and father of the victims, went to the hospital with Sheriff Crow when the statement was secured from Elizabeth.

Two negroes are held on suspicion of knowing something of the assault. They were arrested near East Alton, and are thought to be tramps. Their names are withheld.

MULE REMEMBERED LANDMARK

Driven From Stable by Flood Animal Swam to Place of Former Employment.

Has a mule a memory?

A mule belonging to Frank Lange, a farmer living in the American bottoms, about two miles from East St. Louis, has, according to James Monahan, of Monahan Bros., Sixth street and Piggott avenue, East St. Louis.

Two years ago a mule and a horse belonging to Frank Range were used to haul cinders for the fill on which Monahan Bros. were building. During the recent flood the horse was drowned, but the mule swam two miles to the highlands at Monahan Bros.' store, which it helped to construct.

FOR A QUIET SUNDAY.

Drastic "Closing" Law in Force at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., June 20.—As a retaliatory move against the persons who are clamoring for a certain reform, the city council has unanimously passed a Sunday closing ordinance. It applies to news stands, where the daily papers are sold, as well as every line of business. It will be strictly enforced tomorrow.

Young Navy Deserter Captured.

Jacob Reifschneider, aged 17, of 1822 South Thirteenth street, is held at the Four Courts on a charge of deserting the United States Navy training ship May 16.

HEAVY RAINS IN FRANCE

They Advance Wheat This Morning as Rains in America Did Corn.

SPECULATION WAS NOT ACTIVE

Foreign Markets Were Lower—Cloudy Weather in the Northwest—Larger Receipts.

Grain.

Although the speculative markets advanced this morning they did not display the snap and go that bull markets have recently. It did not take much buying to put prices up, as the selling was light, but there was none of the late whoop and hurrah bull speculation. Wet weather in France was the principal bull factor in wheat and rains in the corn belt boosted corn.

WHEAT—Heavy rains falling in France was cabled over by Broomhall this morning and bulled American markets, though the Paris market opened quiet and ¼c lower. The opening at St. Louis was easier as Liverpool had declined ⅛@¼d, the weather cloudy in the Northwest and not unfavorable elsewhere, but the strength displayed by Chicago rallied the bulls in the support of the home market and rallied prices also. Speculation lacked the "ginger" that has been so conspicuous for some time past on the buying side, but the selling checked by the advance and strength displayed. Receipts at this point were 11,700 bu, against 57,600 bu one year ago.

September opened ⅛c lower at 74½c and sold up ot 74⅞c. July had 79⅝c bid, but later sold at 74½c off to 74¼c and back to 74½c. Deferred options were more pressed for sale at ⅛c decline. December selling at 75½c and May offered at 79¼c.

Late in the day predictions for continued fair weather in the northwest gave the bulls a chance to renew control, and they rushed September up to 74⅝c bid, July to 79½c bid. December selling at 75½c and 78⅜c bid. At close September offered at 74Zc and July sold at 79¼c.

Primary receipts were 316,000 bu, against 457,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 125,000 bu, against 346,000 bu last year. Clearances in flour and wheat were 245,000 bu.

The early bull spurt did not hold, as considerable selling by longs who were anxious to realize profits and rest easy over Sunday caused the market to weaken until September sold at 74¼c, and July was offered at 78⅞c, December at 75¼@75¼c and May at 78⅞c. The closing Paris market showed no change from the opening, which showed the trade not excertised over the heavy rains in France. Southeast Missouri and southern Illinois continued to furnish most the bad crop news, though a disappointing yield report came from southwest Missouri, but Indiana sent in advices of better yields than expected.

CORN—Too much rain in the corn belt was displayed on the weather map this morning for the Chicago speculators to stand for, and that market had quite an advance at the opening, this in turn bringing out stronger bidding locally, but not resulting in much trading. Cables were bearish, reporting ¾d declines in Liverpool. Receipts in the home market were 22,500 bu, against 33,300 bu one year ago.

Sept. had 48½ (⅛@¼c higher) bid and then offered at 48⅜@48½c, but opening trading at 48½c and 48½@48⅝c bid. July sold ⅛c higher at 49c.

Realizing sales caused a recession in price later. September selling down to 47⅞ and July to 48½c, but the bulls came in and "whooped her up" nearing the close. September finally having 48⅜c bid and July selling at 48⅞c. At close July had buyers and September sellers at these rates.

Primary receipts were 612,000 bu, against 326,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 200,000 bu, against 229,000 bu last year. Clearances were 263,000 bu.

OATS—No one gave this market any attntion during the first hour of the session, though Chicago was stronger and corn higher. Receipts here were 22,950 bu, against 50,300 bu one year ago.

In September there was scme trading late in the day, the sales at 33¼c, the same price as that bid at close of yesterday. July was neglected.

Primary receipts were 506,000 bu, against 338,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 506,000 bu, against 143,000 bu last year. Clearances, 18,400 bu.

RYE—Dull. A car thin No. 2 sold east side at 51½c and choice salable at 52c with 53c asked loaded. No. 3 quotable at 51c.

Trade Topics.

The Echo Agricole of Paris, June 4, observes that, according to advices received from all parts of the country, the wheat crop has a much more satisfactory aspect and that a favorable earing may be expected. It will not be a year of straw as last season, but a year of grain, which is to be preferred, especially if the weather be dry at the time of reaping. Other journals confirm these opinions and say that a very notable amelioration is to be found in the agricultural situation.

In its July report the department of agriculture will make an estimate of the acreage under winter wheat at harvest, thus indicating the acreage abandoned in the bottom lands on account of the late floods. An estimate will also be made of the amount of winter and spring wheat back on the farms July 1.

In Liverpool the wheat market opened easy and ¼d lower on semi-official crop report from St. Petersburg stating that the prospective wheat yield surpasses that of last year. In corn, the weakness in American markets induced general profit taking, the opening being easy and ½d lower from last night's close. During the morning the pressure on La Plata offerings caused continued realizing resulting in a fulther decline of ¼d. The close was weak and ¾d lower than last night. Paris cool, been raining heavily.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments Monday next will be 10,400,000 bu, of which quantity Europe will take some 8,800,000 bu. He predicts there will be some decrease in the quantity of breadstuffs on passage.

Eustis, Neb., writes as follows: Prospects never better for wheat, rye and oats in Frontier and Dawson Counties. Corn very small and backward for this time of the year.

Nashville, Tenn., mills are reported to be bidding 71c for No. 3 red (new) wheat at Charleston, Mo. This is equal to 78¼c at St. Louis.

Jones of the Commercial West estimates the total wheat crop at 740,000,000 bu. That will probably not be far out of line.

FLOU RAND FEED.

FLOUR—Quiet, but firm. Only business on domestic account and for prompt shipment. Cable bids continue too low.

Soft winter flour—Patent, $3.75@3.90; straights, $3.60@3.70; extra fancy, $3.45@3.55; low grades in jutes, $2.40@2.90. Hard winter flours in jutes—Patents, $3.45 for firsts to $3.60 for extra fancy; straights, $3.25@3.35; clears, $2.70@2.90. Foregoing prices for lots from first hands, track or at depot this side. Orders higher.

RYE FLOUR—In a jobbing way at $3 in jute sacks and $3.20 in wool for new. Mixed and inferior less.

CORN MEAL—Quotable f. o. b. at $2.70 for city meal, $3 for pearl meal, grits and hominy.

MILLFEED—Quiet. The small offerings of country bran in 100s sold at 80@81c west track, and shippers bid 81c east track. On direct order bran in large sacks brought 82c east track. Mixed feed in 100s salable at 84c and mids at 88@93c. At mill bran sells at 87@90c and ships at 90c.

HAY.

Received, 590 tons local and 10 tons through. Shipped, 109 tons. Offerings fair and quality nothing extra. Market dull, as most buyers holding off for Monday. Prices slow; no change.

Market, west side: Timothy, $16@16.50 for choice, $14@15.50 for No. 1, $12@13 for No. 2, $7@11 for low grades. Clover, mixed, $12@13 for No. 1 and $10.50@11.50 for No. 2; clover, $15 for choice, $14@14.50 for No. 1, $11@13 for No. 2. Prairie, $11 for No. 1, $10@10.50 for No. 2, $6@9 for lower grades.

GRAIN MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

CHICAGO, June 20.—There was a good general demand for wheat at the start, influenced by the continued reports of poor returns from threshing in the Southwest and opening prices were strong, July being ¼@⅜c higher at 76¾@76⅞c, while Sept. was ⅛@¼c higher at 75⅛c. Bullish reports from the Northwest, where rains are needed, also aided the upturn, as did the strength at St. Louis and Minneapolis. Trading was largely in Sept. and free selling on easier cables caused an easier tone during the first hour, the price selling off to 74⅝c. Receipts at Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago were 254 cars.

The sentiment in corn was generally bullish on the rather unfavorable weather and opening prices were strong, with July ⅜@½c higher at 50¼, and Sept. up a shade to ¼@⅜c at 49⅝@50⅛c. Shorts and commission houses were the best buyers and were influenced considerably by the strong cash demand at the seaboard. Prices were quite steady the early part of the day, with a good trade. Receipts were 637 cars.

Oats were firm in sympathy with the strength in other grains, Sept. being unchanged to a shade higher at 33¼@33⅜c. Trading was extremely light and prices showed little change. Receipts were 176 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady, with a little scattered selling on the easier hog market. September pork and lard were unchanged at $17 and $8.97½, while ribs were a shade lower at $9.30.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Butter steady; creameries, 16@21c; dairies, 15½@18½c. Eggs easy, 12½@13¾c. Cheese steady; twins, 10½c; daisies, 10¾@11c; Young Americas, 11@15c. Live poultry steadier; turkeys, 10c; chickens, 11c.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Wheat—Receipts, 68,250 bu; irregular and generally easier, owing to rains in the northwest and lower English cables. July, 82⅞@83¼c; Sept., 79¾@80 1-16c. Butter—Receipts, 5433; steady; state dairy, 17@21c; creamery, 18@21½c. Cheese—Receipts, 3947; steady; state full cream fancy small colored and white, 10⅝c; large colored and white, 10⅝c. Eggs—Receipts, 7924; western extras, 18½c; do seconds to firsts, 15@17c. Sugar—Raw firm; fair refining, 3⅛c; centrifugal, 96 test, 3 19-32c; molasses sugar, 2 29-32c; refined steady; crushed, 5.45c; powdered, 4.95c; granulated, 4.85c. Coffee—Quiet; No. 7 Rio, 5⅛c. Molasses quiet; New Orleans, 31@40c.

LIVERPOOL, June 20.—Wheat—Spot quiet; No. 2 red western, 6s 3d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 7d; No. 1 California, 6s 8d; futures quiet; July, 6s 3⅛d; Sept., 6s 3⅜d. Corn—Spot American mixed new firm, 5s 1d; American mixed old quiet, 6s 2d; futures dull; June nominal; July 4s 8d; Sept., 4s 6¼d.

Telegraphic advices to the New York Financial Chronicle Friday evening from the South indicate that over the greater part of the cotton belt the past week dry weather has prevailed. In Texas, however, rain has been quite general, the precipitation at some points being rather excessive. Early in the week the temperature was rather low as a rule, but latterly has been more favorable. There are some complaints that cold weather has checked growth and that the plant is two to three weeks late, but a number of their correspondents report it improved in condition.

Buy a Home on Monthly Payments

Plenty of houses can be purchased on easy terms, small cash payment down and monthly payments about the same amount that you are now paying for rent, and much cheaper than you will have to pay before the end of the year, if the rents of houses continue to advance, which will surely occur on account of the high price of building material and labor. Here are a few nice, desirable homes that can be bought on payments of $100 to $300 cash and $20 a month and upward:

4319 Labadie av., between Newstead and Vinegrove avs., a 1-story and basement brick residence, containing 6 rooms and cellar; lot 18½x165 feet; price, $2150.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE COMING

Will Accompany His Uncle, Price Henry to the World's Fair.

LONDON, June 20.—Today's court circular says Prince Henry of Prussia when he visits the United States next year, for the World's Fair at St. Louis, will not go in an official capacity, but will travel incognito.

The prince will tour the United States, including the Pacific coast.

The Crown Prince of Germany also will be a visitor to the World's Fair and may be accompanied by one of his brothers.

PUSH DE FOUNTAINE CHARGE.

H. F. Courtin's Attorneys Say They Will Not Let Case Rest.

Attorneys of H. F. Courtin said Saturday that the charges against Maurice Edgar Arby DeFountaine would not be dropped, but would be pushed. DeFountaine was discharged from the court of criminal correction on a technicality Thursday.

Judge Douglas held that if DeFountaine had obtained money under false pretenses the crime was committed in France, and the prosecution failed to sustain the charge of embezzlement as bailee, holding that the three years, at the end of which Courtin was to receive $2000, had not expired. The jury was instructed to return a verdict of not guilty.

Mr. Courtin's friends insist that he is the victim of a scheme.

VACATION FOR POISON SQUAD

Members Will Eschew Adulterated Food During August, July and September.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The "poison squad" of the bureau of chemistry is to rest during July, August and September. Its resting will consist of eschewing all foods known to be adulterated. The vacation is because of the hot weather.

The squad began work Dec. 1. Two members have quit the government service and have left the city. The remaining ten have been eating adulterated food to enable Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau, to collect data that will enable him to reach a conclusion as to wether the use of borax or boracic acid for preserving meats has a harmful effect upon the human system. No other poisons have been used.

Secrecy has been observed as to the results, but it is believed that, with the data collected, the department of agriculture will be able successfully to combat the assertions made by foreign governments that certain American food products are harmful. Germany has been particularly lenient toward American pork and beef that has passed through a boracic treatment.

After the poison school "takes up" in October, it is the purpose of Dr. Wiley to experiment with food that has been treated with salicylic acid—that is the chemical used in the preservation of much of the "communion wine" used in churches. It is used to keep cider and grape juice sweet. It arrests fermentation perfectly. It is also used in beer and other beverages. In many states it is a penal offense to use it in any beverage intended to be sold. The investigation by Dr. Wiley is likely to be of great value to state legislatures dealing with the pure-food problem.

The session of school, which begins in October, is not to be its last. There are many so-called food poisons, and the doctor will continue his work so long as there is one not looked into if Congress will continue the grants of money needed.

"Boro-Formalin" (Eimer & Amend) used as tooth and mouthwash in the morning leaves mouth sweet and pure all day.

DREAMED HE WAS AWAKE.

Sleep Walker Next Found Himself in Yard Below.

James Harris was taken to the City Hospital early Saturday morning suffering from numerous bruises and internal injuries sustained in a fall from the second story of his home at 2022 Eugenia street while walking in his sleep.

Harris says he remembers dreaming that he was awake and the next thing he knew he was being picked up from the yard. He is 29 years old.

OWL CAR USED AS BARRICADE

Tom Vaughn Shoots at Policemen Over Passgeners' Heads.

Passengers on a Cherokee division owl car were thrown into a panic at 1:30 Saturday morning when Tom Vaughn, a negro fugitive, used the car as a barricade against a squad of police that was pursuing him, and fired at the officers through the car windows.

The car was filled with passengers, and when the battle began some crawled under the seats, others laid down in the aisles while others jumped from the car, and all escaped injury, even the negro.

The motorman, thinking highway robbers were at hand, stopped the car at the first shot and Vaughan took refuge behind it.

The conflict began near the corner of Thirteenth and Morgan streets. About 1 o'clock Policeman McDermott saw Vaughn, wanted for stabbing Mose Spence, a negro, and attempted to arrest him. Vaughn drew a revolver, fired at McDermott and ran. Policemen Grace, Duffy and Fitzgibbons heard the shots and joined McDermott in the chase. They kept up a running fire at Vaughn, who returned the shots. At Twelfth street and Washington avenue Vaughn ran in front of the car and shot at his pursuers through the car window.

Special Officers Woodling and Fox heard the fusilade and ran from Chestnut and Thirteenth streets to the assistance of the policemen. By that time Vaughn had exhausted his ammunition. He was placed under arrest and taken to the Four Courts.

$20,000 FOR A DEAD HORSE.

Owner of Racer, Killed by Train, Compromises With Company.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., June 20.—The George Arnold suit in the federal court at Dallas has been compromised by J. W. Fuller, the turfman accepting $20,000 in settlement with the Texas & Pacific Railway Co.

About two years ago the famous racehorse, George Arnold, was killed in a wreck on the Texas & Pacific from New Orleans to Mr. Fuller's stock farm at Willis Point, Tex. Mr. Fuller sued the railroad company for $50,000. It is said that George Arnold, the season before his death, won for his owner more than $50,000.

Miss Nettie Blackmore, Minneapolis, tells how any young woman may be permanently cured of monthly pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

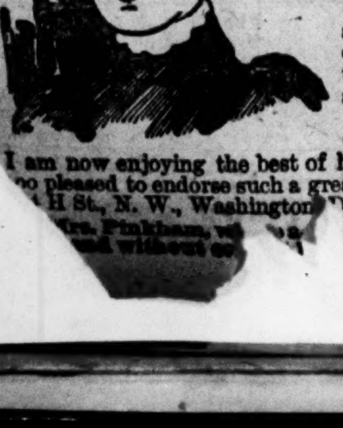

"YOUNG WOMEN:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—NETTIE BLACKMORE, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Painful Periods

are quickly and permanently overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The above letter is only one of hundreds of thousands which prove this statement to be a fact. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality,—if it is painful something is wrong. Don't take narcotics to deaden the pain, but remove the cause—perhaps it is caused by irregularity or womb displacements, or the development of a tumor. Whatever it is, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is guaranteed to cure it.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

Details of Another Case.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and carelessness is the cause of most of the sufferings of women. I believe that if we properly understood the laws of health we would all be well, but if the sick women only knew the truth about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they would be saved much suffering and would soon be cured.

"I used it for five months for a local difficulty which had troubled me for years, and for which I had spent hundreds of dollars in the vain endeavor to rectify. My life forces were being sapped, and I was daily losing my vitality.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me completely, and I am now enjoying the best of health, and am most grateful, and only too pleased to endorse such a great remedy."—MISS JENNIE L. EDWARDS, [illegible] H St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

PICNIC CONCLUDES JUBILEE OF SONG

Saengerfest Visitors Are in No Hurry to Return Home.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS HAS MADE COMMITTEE REJOICE

Congressman Bartholdt Is Principal Orator at Volkfest, Held at Old Fair Grounds, Where All Make Merry.

Pleased with the musical and financial success of the thirty-first national Saengerfest, the visitors turned to business or pleasure Saturday morning with a willingness that only comes with contentment.

The representatives who make up the business body of the national organization met at the Liberal Arts building to decide upon business propositions, the chief one being the decision as to whether the saengerfest should be held each three or four years. The quadrennial plan has been growing in favor.

The place of the next national meeting is being disputed by Chicago and Indianapolis, with an apparent majority in favor of the former.

Those not concerned in the business enjoyed recreation, some going to the old Fair Grounds early to attend the old-fashioned volkfest, the German way of saying picnic when a real old-fashioned picnic is meant. Congressman Bartholdt is the orator. Most of the singing societies will contribute to the informal musical program. The Turners have a prominent part.

Saturday night and Sunday the visitors will depart. Those who were in a great hurry to get home left Friday night or Saturday morning, but they were few. Saengerfest visitors do not hurry about anything, especially cutting short a vacation.

Friday night's program closed the formal concert series. The successes of the national male chorus was repeated and the audience was almost as large as those of the nights before. The chorus numbers were: "Song of Challenge," "On the Rhine" and "The Star Spangled Banner," with orchestra accompaniment.

Children Divide Afternoon Honors.

Without accompaniment the chorus rendered "In the Distance," "Awake, Beautiful Dreamer," "Farewell," "The Young Journeyman" and "In the Forest."

The Chicago chorus gave "The Battle Hymn," under the direction of Director Gustav Ehrhorn. The orchestra numbers that thrilled the audience and made them clamor for encores were the overture from "Tannhauser," the suite de ballet from "Queen of Sheba" and "Salvomic Dances."

In the afternoon concert the St. Louis school children were given the place of honor and divided honors equally with the soloists, all of whom appeared on the program.

The careful training of the school children for the past weeks by Director William H. Pommer was very much in evidence, and they intoned their numbers ranging from "The Heavens Are Telling" to the Brahm's Lullaby with remarkable effect.

The soloists all appeared in the quintet from "Die Meistersinger" and repeated their success of the first concert.

It is estimated that the attendance at the four concerts was about 45,000, and the revenue from seat sales, aside from those given to subscribers, will be about $24,000. Of the guarantee fund, $3,000 has been paid and the expenses of the Saengerfest will not amount to much over $45,000, so that it is possible that there will be a surplus, an almost unprecedented result.

In both of the former National Saengerfests held in St. Louis the committee has had to face a deficit, but not so heavy as that faced by the committees in other cities.

CITY NEWS.

BOSTON SINKING INTO SEA.

Subsidence Is at Rate of Foot Every 100 Years.

BOSTON, June 20.—According to a former member of the Metropolitan water board, Boston and the surrounding territory are slowly sinking down to the sea level. The statement is made in a report on the Charles river dam.

The subsidence is estimated to be at the rate of about one foot in a hundred years. The present plans used as a base by Boston engineers has sunk to .79 feet below the mean low water and throws out all survey circulars for the state. Various landmarks along Massachusetts bay have sunk from one to two feet in 90 years.

Stranger Asks What Bank His Money Went Into.

Philip Yelic, who speaks no English, thought he had found a friend indeed when Albert Wagoner of 1615 Market street offered to take $250 that he brought from Austria with him and place it in a bank.

Yelic was satisfied with the arrangement until he needed the money. Then he asked Wagoner for it, but the latter could not remember what bank he had put it in. He was arrested Friday night.

Sunday Morning Outing.

The Sunday morning excursion on the City of Providence has become quite popular—hundreds are taking this trip every Sunday—Leaving Olive street at 9:30, you get four hours on the river, returning at 1:30 p. m. If you want to spend the day picnicking, get off at Montesano, where you will find all comforts and conveniences. Boat leaving at 2:30, returns at 10 p. m. Tickets good to return on either trip. Good hot dinners and dainty lunches served to order. Round trip, 50c.

BETTER RAILROAD SERVICE

Lines Shut Out on Friday Now Enter Union Station and Boat Service Suspended.

Trains are running in and out of Union Station on all lines except the St. Louis Valley.

Of the four lines using the boats to Alton Friday, the Big Four resumed its Union Station service at noon Friday and the Chicago & Alton, Burlington (east) and Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Friday night.

The chief difference now from the service in ordinary times is that trains over the same road, arriving or leaving only a short time apart, are consolidated.

All trains are using Eads bridge, as the approaches to the Merchants' bridge are not yet repaired.
